Housing Act Goals Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-President Johnson asked Congress today to "set a far reaching goal" to build 26 million new homes and apartments during the next 10 years.

This was the dramatic center piece of Johnson's longest special message to Congress this year, labeled "The Crisis of the Cities."

Johnson said the housing and urban development act he seeks would, among other things, replace six million "shameful substandard units of misery where more than 20 million Americans still live."

In the first five years of the program, Johnson said he wants $2.34 billion of contracting authority to build or rehabilitate nearly 2.5 million housing units.

Some other key points in the cities program were proposals to:

--Authorize adjustment of FHA interest rate ceilings "to reflect the economic realities of the financial markets." Similar to a recent administration call for flexible VA home loan interest the upshot would be to raise the FHA rates in this period of tight money.

-- Establish a cooperative federal-state industry program to reinsure property insurance policies in high-risk city areas -- notably those that might be targets of urban rioting -- by chartering a national insurance development corporation within the department of housing and urban development.

--Permit insurance companies to defer taxes to the extent that they participate in the plan to provide property insurance in the high risk areas.

Johnson's blueprint was a long range one, calling for only relatively modest increases in federal outlays during the first year.

"No single statement or message," he said, "can embrace the solutions to the city's problems. No single program can attack them."

He said that despite his 10-year goal, "no one can say how long it will take, or how much of our fortune will eventually be committed."

He Might Not Fit in Today

By Robert Stearns

George Washington, born 236 years ago, was of such good character it fostered a legend to the effect he never told a lie.

Debunkers assure us the story of the cherry tree is more fable than fact, but, nevertheless, it is hard to believe a like tale about any contemporary public figure could survive generations of retelling.

Of course, this is not upsetting to many people because simple honesty has gone out of fashion. Today's man is not considered dishonest, merely expedient, and the sin is not in the act of commission, but rather in the fact that he gets caught.

And even this can be carried off if he is charming and witty and glib in the modern idiom.

Poor George, we're afraid, might not fit in today.

For example, can you imagine Washington saying he didn't want to get involved? Can you hear it? A group of revolutionaries come to Washington, the Virginia aristocrat—Washington, the landowner, the gentleman farmer.

"Help us," they say, "help us to build a nation dedicated to a new concept of freedom. Lead our inexperienced army against the might of England."

And George, if he were a modern man, might look out on his acres of rolling countryside; his stables of blooded stock; and say with great sincerity, "I'd rather not get involved."

Washington could not utter those words because of his inherent honesty: because he realized that involvement was the only way he could maintain his integrity. And integrity to one's self is the foundation of honesty with one's neighbors.

Shakespeare said it: "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Washington said it in his Farewell Address: "I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

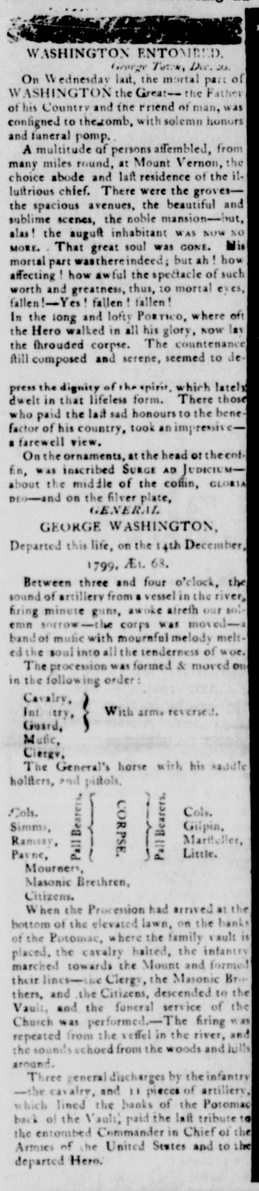

Involvement to Washington meant many personal sacrifices. As a rich man, he could have lived in ease and high comfort. Instead, he chose to suffer countless hardships. Betrayed, abused, he was the object of jealousy and violent criticism.

Thomas Paine, an eminent American patriot, turned against our first president and called him "treacherous in private friendship and a hypocrite in public life." Washington was stung by scathing attacks in the press of the day and complained to Thomas Jefferson of "such exaggerated and indecent terms as could scarcely be applied to a Nero, a notorious defaulter, or even a common pickpocket."

Washington did not believe in patriotism with a purpose. To him, patriotism was a purpose and no sacrifice was too great as a means to its fulfillment.

Our forefathers were fortunate, indeed, to have a leader of Washington's stature in their time of trial. But we are lucky, too, if only we remember to look back from time to time and use the shining example to light the forward path.

WASHINGTON ENTOMBED.

George Town, Dec. 31.

On Wednesday last, the mortal part of WASHINGTON the Great—the Father of his Country and the friend of man, was consigned to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled, from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion—but, alas! the august inhabitant was now no more. That great soul was gone. His mortal part was there indeed; but ah! how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus, to mortal eyes, fallen!—Yes! fallen! fallen!

In the long and lofty Portico, where oft the Hero walked in all his glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene, seemed to depress the dignity of the spirit, which lately dwelt in that lifeless form. There those who paid the last sad honours to the benefactor of his country, took an impressive—a farewell view.

On the ornaments, at the head of the coffin, was inscribed Surge ad Judicium—about the middle of the coffin, Gloria Deo—and on the silver plate,

GENERAL
GEORGE WASHINGTON,
Departed this life, on the 14th December, 1799, Æt. 68.

Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river, firing minute guns, awoke afreth our solemn sorrow—the corps was moved—a band of music with mournful melody melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed & moved on in the following order:

Cavalry,
Infantry,
Guard,
Music,
Clergy,
} With arms reversed.

The General's horse with his saddle holsters, and pistols.

Pall Bearers: Cols. Simms, Ramsay, Payne,
CORPSE.
Pall Bearers: Cols. Gilpin, Marbeller, Little.

Mourners,
Masonic Brethren,
Citizens.

When the Procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn, on the bank of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched towards the Mount and formed their lines—the Clergy, the Masonic Brethern, and the Citizens, descended to the Vault, and the funeral service of the Church was performed.—The firing was repeated from the vessel in the river, and the sounds echoed from the woods and hills around.

Three general discharges by the infantry—the cavalry, and 11 pieces of artillery, which lined the banks of the Potomac back of the Vault, paid the last tribute to the entombed Commander in Chief of the Armies of the United States and to the departed Hero.

How Washington's Death was Reported

This is a reproduction of a column, bordered in black, announcing the death of George Washington.

It is from the Ulster County Gazett, published in Kingston, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1800.

The newspaper, which carried a front page poem, and other articles about Washington, was brought into the Daily Standard by C. W. Martin, 611 Vernon St. It belongs to Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. T. T. Copeland of Springfield.

A heavy black border surrounded all of the newspaper's

Hue Fighting Fatal to Marine

Marine Pfc. Byron L. Brown, 20, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Brown, 530 Coleman Ave., received a message that he was missing in action, received a telegram yesterday that he had been killed near Hue, South Vietnam, Feb. 9.

The parents received a letter from their son, written Feb. 2, written at Phu Bai stating:

"A buddy and I were eating in the mess hall here, and the building was blown out, and we're now a roving battalion. We're headed tomorrow for a place called Hue, pronounced "Way", where the action is."

Brown entered marine training in May of 1967 in Jacksonville, Fla., and according to his father, was determined to make the corps in spite of a slight inner ear defect. His parents then lived in Titusville, Fla., where the father worked for an electric power company.

Brown received basic infantry training at Camp LeJeune, N. C., and graduated at Parris Island, S. C., where he was cited as "outstanding recruit" of platoon 179 at closing ceremonies. He went to Vietnam in October.

He was born in Wellsville in Montgomery county, where he attended elementary school and high school. He was graduated there two years ago. He spent a year in the Dave Rankin trade school, St. Louis, studying

FBI Probes Soviet Embassy Bomb Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) - Working under President Johnson's personal order to clear up the case quickly, police and FBI agents probing a bomb explosion at the Soviet Embassy are exploring a possible link with a dynamite theft in nearby Virginia.

They said Wednesday night they had "several leads" on the case.

Eighteen sticks of dynamite and 50 blasting caps were reported stolen from a construction site in West Springfield, Va., a Washington suburb.

The theft was noticed Wednesday shortly after the predawn explosion shook the four-story embassy, just four blocks from the White House.

No one was hurt in the blast but it did slight damage to a first-floor office and reception room, shattered windows in nearby buildings and shook U.S.-Soviet relations.

The Soviet government formally protested the incident, accused the United States of providing inadequate protection and demanded compensation.

Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk expressed regrets but the State Department rejected the charge of inadequate protection. There were indications the Soviets would be compensated.

One embassy official said the explosion could have been the work of fanatics inflamed by a three-day mock trial of communism which ended Wednesday on the Goergetown University campus in Washington. It was sponsored by a coalition of anti-Communist groups and included lengthy testimony concerning prison torture and religious persecution in Iron Curtain countries.

Police had no comment on this theory.

Democrat Backed Remap Bill Rams Through House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Majority Democrats today rammed the Beckerle plan for congressional redistricting through the House on an 84-66 vote.

That gave the controversial bill just two more than the necessary affirmative votes for House passage.

It came after more than an hour of bitter argument in which Republican minority members teamed with Negro Democrats to oppose the bill as a gerrymander.

Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton minority leader, called it a bill "conceived in iniquity and born out of wedlock." He said the House had reached "the pinnacle of unfairness" in passing such a measure.

Much of the debate was carried on a St. Louis television station.

Rep. Joseph Beckerle, D-St. Louis, said he drafted the districts because he thought the House should pass a bill that would meet the standards set by the federal courts in their one man-one vote decisions.

He said the population variances were less than 1 per cent but he conceded the districts could have been more compact.

Beckerle said it was not the bill of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, that he had never talked with the governor about redistricting.

Hearnes was in the office of Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, where he could hear the arguments on the House floor over a loudspeaker.

The governor said he heard the arguments but was in Cantrell's office primarily to discuss changes the Senate had made in his budget bills.

Rep. Deverne (caps D V) Calloway, D-St. Louis, one of the 12 Negro democrats in the House, denounced "The technique by which this bill has been foisted on us -- it is the most treacherous act since Brutus stabbed Caesar in the belly."

The bill was brought up Tuesday as a substitute for a bill that had been gathering dust on the shelf. The surprise move caught the Republicans and the Negroes unprepared. They were prepared today but lacked the numbers necessary to stop the the Beckerle bill.

Another Negro, Rep. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, said some Democrats -- he called them pseudo-liberals -- tell the Negroes they want to give them equality. Then, he said, the Democrats use the Negro votes but give nothing in return.

Rep. James P. Troupe, D-St. Louis, another Negro and the Democratic caucus chairman, called it "a bitter taste and will be hard to swallow. This bill does not meet the wishes of 40 per cent of the voters in St. Louis and 100 per cent of the Negroes."

The Republican party has said it will use its organization to seek the referral petitions necessary for putting the Beckerle redistricting plan to a statewide voter test. Today Calloway said the Negroes of St. Louis would help the Republicans.

Besides the minority Republicans and the Negro Democrats these other Democratic members voted against the Beckerle bill:

Reps. Gladys Marriott of Kansas City, Reynolds D. (Pete) Rodgers of Kansas City, Ken Growney of Kansas City, Thomas D. Graham of Jefferson City, Donald Gralike of LeMay and Carl Niewoehner of Columbia.

House passage of the redistricting bill apparently will let the Senate recess during next week. The Senate finished work on the budget bills Wednesday and recessed on condition the House would pass a redistricting bill.

The Senate agreed for the most part with its Appropriations Committee as it cut back on the funds passed by the House. But it still made enough additions to top the governor's recommendations by $2 million.

The Senate would have slipped under the governor's figures if it weren't for a late decision to allocate some $3.5 million in additional building funds for the state's universities and colleges.

That amount was to replace federal funds which were expected last year but weren't received.

While the Senate Appropriations Committee had done quite a bit of paring, the full Senate took out another big chunk when it dropped a proposed $3.8 million for a children's mental health center at Fulton.

The biggest additions made by the Senate to committee figures came when it restored House-approved amounts of $1 million for a parking building at St. Louis University, and $961,000 for a dietary facility at the St. Louis State School and Hospital.

Here is a district by district alignment of the Congressional redistricting plan passed by the Missouri House today:

Airliner Flies Hijacker to Cuba

MIAMI Fla. (AP) - A gunman wearing a white cowboy hat and tennis shoes pushed a stewardess into the cockpit of a DC8 jet over Florida Wednesday and held a pistol under her ear until the pilot detoured his craft and 109 persons to a landing in Cuba.

About five hours after the hijacking, Delta Air Line Flight 843 returned to Miami, leaving behind in Havana a young man who gave his name to the airline as "S. Wilson."

In Havana, the hijacker was identified as Lawrence Rhodes, 29, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who asked for political asylum. The government announced it was studying his request.

The man boarded the Chicago-Miami flight with 64 other persons at Tampa. Other passengers said he had been drinking heavily at the airport bar.

Delta officials said he bought a $21 first class ticket at 12:44 p.m. Wednesday in the airline's downtown Tampa ticket office. It was a one-way ticket to Miami.

"He told us he didn't care who he killed or how badly he shot up the plane," said Joy Bleil, 28, of Elmwood Park, Ill. Mrs. Bleil, the senior stewardess, was held in the cockpit as a hostage until the giant, $8 million airliner was escorted into Cuba by four MIG fithers and touched down at Jose Martin airport.

"He said he was facing a death sentence for the hijacking anyway," said the pert brunette in a news conference by the crew at Miami International Airport.

In Havana earlier, speaking with an Associated Press newsman, Mrs. Bleil said, "I don't know why he did this, but I can still feel that cold thing (the pistol) below my ear."

The pilot, J. D. Gainey, 49, said the crew made no attempt to overpower the hijacker.

"The man was all wrought up," Gainey said.

He was described as about 25, dressed in a sloppy manner, dark complexioned and claiming to be South American although he spoke with no apparent accent.

At 3:37 p.m. seven minutes after the jet took off from Tampa airport with 102 passengers and a crew of seven, the flight was hijacked over Florida's Lake Okeechobee. The plane landed at Havana at 4:29 p.m. It took off again for the United States at 7:36 p.m. and arrived at Miami at 8:17 p.m.

This was the first commercial airliner hijacked over the United States to land in Cuba. In 1961, a Pan American flight was diverted over Mexico to Cuba. Two National Airlines flights were hijacked in flight but passengers and crew disarmed the hijackers and the planes landed in the United States. Many small planes have been successfully hijacked to Cuba.

Passengers said they were treated well during the airport stopover in Havana. Some were interviewed and photographed by Cuban newsmen, they said. Others brought back souvenirs including Cuban rum, some of which was consumed on the return flight, and political posters.

"They gave us Cuban coffee and juice and permitted us to go through the airport," said Lex Hawkins, 42, a lawyer from Des-Moines, Iowa.

Trip Revives Rumor Jackie Kennedy to Marry

MONTREAL (AP) - Mrs. John F. Kennedy took her children to Canada Wednesday for a skiing holiday, touching off rumors that she was on her way to marry Lord Harlech. There were quick denials from the British peer and from a spokesman for her Canadian host.

"There is no truth at all in the rumors," the 49-year-old peer told a newsman in London. "I am not seeing Mrs. Kennedy in the near future. There is no question of an engagement or anything like that."

Rumors that Mrs. Kennedy planned to fly on to London to meet Harlech were denied by a member of the Timmins family at whose country estate she and her children are staying.

"We're here to ski," the member of the family said. "After the weekend, we're all heading back to Montreal, I suppose."

Mrs. Kennedy, Caroline and John, are staying with in-laws of her press secretary, Mrs. Robert Timmins, in Ste. Agathe, Que., about 55 miles northwest of Montreal.

The Timmins family spokesman laughed when asked whether Lord Harlech was coming to Ste. Agatha.

"That's too funny," he said. The latest rash of marriage rumors stemmed from an item in the New York newspaper Women's Wear Daily. It said the "hottest rumor in town" was that Mrs. Kennedy and Lord Harlech would be married on Washington's Birthday.

Harlech was amabassador to Washington during the Kennedy administration. His wife was killed in an automobile accident last May 31, and Mrs. Kennedy flew to England for her funeral.

Train Hits East Prairie Woman's Car

Joyce McClendon, 32, East Prairie, escaped serious injury when her 1964 Ford was struck Wednesday at 3:25 p.m. at a railroad crossing near Anniston, the state patrol reported.

She did not see the approaching Cotton Belt freight train. The engineer was A. L. Sebright, 58, Scott City. The car was struck by the engine. This caused her to lose control and strike a telephone pole.

She was treated at the Frazier clinic in Charleston.

Selena Burres, 24, Rector, Ark., was injured in a two-car collision Wednesday at 4 p.m. on highway 84, two miles of Kennett, when a 1962 Ford, in which she was a passenger, collided with a 1958 Ford, driven by Riley Treat, 35, Kennett. The injured woman was in a car driven by Winford Burress, 26, Rector.

The Treat car attempted to make a left turn when the driver of the Burress car attempted to pass.

Mrs. Burress received a chest injury and scratches on her forehead. She was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

Both drivers were arrested, Treat for failure to transfer his license, and the Burress woman for careless and imprudent driving and passing at an intersection.

A 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Shirley Phillips, 31, Marston, attempted to make a right turn onto a gravel road, when it was struck in the rear by a 1967 Ford, driven by Frank Galordi, 43, Memphis, at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday at the south edge of Marston.

Housing Act Goals Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-President Johnson asked Congress today to "set a far reaching goal" to build 26 million new homes and apartments during the next 10 years.

This was the dramatic center piece of Johnson's longest special message to Congress this year, labeled "The Crisis of the Cities."

Johnson said the housing and urban development act he seeks would, among other things, replace six million "shameful substandard units of misery where more than 20 million Americans still live."

In the first five years of the program, Johnson said he wants $2.34 billion of contracting authority to build or rehabilitate nearly 2.5 million housing units.

Some other key points in the cities program were proposals to:

--Authorize adjustment of FHA interest rate ceilings "to reflect the economic realities of the financial markets." Similar to a recent administration call for flexible VA home loan interest the upshot would be to raise the FHA rates in this period of tight money.

-- Establish a cooperative federal-state industry program to reinsure property insurance policies in high-risk city areas -- notably those that might be targets of urban rioting -- by chartering a national insurance development corporation within the department of housing and urban development.

--Permit insurance companies to defer taxes to the extent that they participate in the plan to provide property insurance in the high risk areas.

Johnson's blueprint was a long range one, calling for only relatively modest increases in federal outlays during the first year.

"No single statement or message," he said, "can embrace the solutions to the city's problems. No single program can attack them."

He said that despite his 10-year goal, "no one can say how long it will take, or how much of our fortune will eventually be committed."

He Might Not Fit in Today

By Robert Stearns

George Washington, born 236 years ago, was of such good character it fostered a legend to the effect he never told a lie.

Debunkers assure us the story of the cherry tree is more fable than fact, but, nevertheless, it is hard to believe a like tale about any contemporary public figure could survive generations of retelling.

Of course, this is not upsetting to many people because simple honesty has gone out of fashion. Today's man is not considered dishonest, merely expedient, and the sin is not in the act of commission, but rather in the fact that he gets caught.

And even this can be carried off if he is charming and witty and glib in the modern idiom.

Poor George, we're afraid, might not fit in today.

For example, can you imagine Washington saying he didn't want to get involved? Can you hear it? A group of revolutionaries come to Washington, the Virginia aristocrat—Washington, the landowner, the gentleman farmer.

"Help us," they say, "help us to build a nation dedicated to a new concept of freedom. Lead our inexperienced army against the might of England."

And George, if he were a modern man, might look out on his acres of rolling countryside; his stables of blooded stock; and say with great sincerity, "I'd rather not get involved."

Washington could not utter those words because of his inherent honesty; because he realized that involvement was the only way he could maintain his integrity. And integrity to one's self is the foundation of honesty with one's neighbors.

Shakespeare said it: "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Washington said it in his Farewell Address: "I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

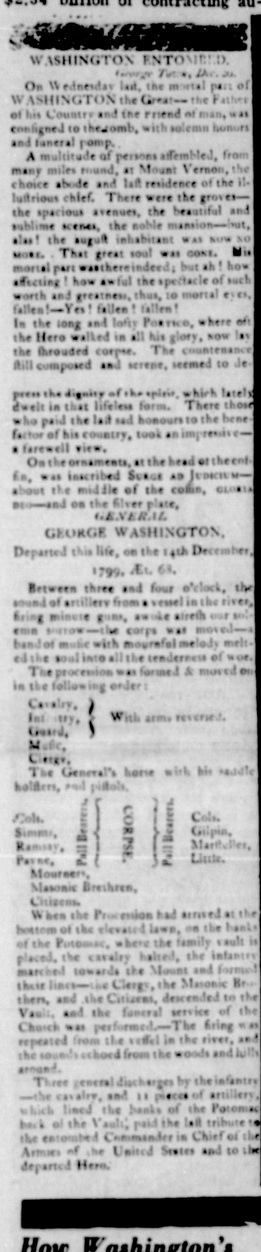

Involvement to Washington meant many personal sacrifices. As a rich man, he could have lived in ease and high comfort. Instead, he chose to suffer countless hardships. Betrayed, abused, he was the object of jealousy and violent criticism.

Thomas Paine, an eminent American patriot, turned against our first president and called him "treacherous in private friendship and a hypocrite in public life." Washington was stung by scathing attacks in the press of the day and complained to Thomas Jefferson of "such exaggerated and indecent terms as could scarcely be applied to a Nero, a notorious defaulter, or even a common pickpocket."

Washington did not believe in patriotism with a purpose. To him, patriotism was a purpose and no sacrifice was too great as a means to its fulfillment.

Our forefathers were fortunate, indeed, to have a leader of Washington's stature in their time of trial. But we are lucky, too, if only we remember to look back from time to time and use the shining example to light the forward path.

WASHINGTON ENTOMBED.

George Town, Dec. 31.

On Wednesday last, the mortal part of WASHINGTON the Great—the Father of his Country and the friend of man, was consigned to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled, from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion—but, alas! the august inhabitant was now no more. That great soul was gone. His mortal part was there indeed; but ah! how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus, to mortal eyes, fallen!—Yes! fallen! fallen!

In the long and lofty Portico, where oft the Hero walked in all his glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene, seemed to depress the dignity of the spirit, which lately dwelt in that lifeless form. There those who paid the last sad honours to the benefactor of his country, took an impressive—a farewell view.

On the ornaments, at the head of the coffin, was inscribed SUMUS AD JUDICIUM—about the middle of the coffin, GLORIA DEO—and on the silver plate,

GENERAL
GEORGE WASHINGTON,
Departed this life, on the 14th December,
1799. Æt. 68.

Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river, firing minute guns, awoke afresh our solemn sorrow—the corps was moved—a band of music with mournful melody melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed & moved on in the following order:

Cavalry,
Infantry,
Guard,
Music,
Clergy,
With arms reversed.

The General's horse with his saddle holsters, and pistols.

Pall Bearers — COFFIN — Pall Bearers

Cols. Simms, Ramsay, Payne, Mourners, Masonic Brethren, Citizens.

Cols. Gilpin, Marbelier, Little.

When the Procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn, on the bank of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched towards the Mount and formed their lines—the Clergy, the Masonic Brethren, and the Citizens, descended to the Vault, and the funeral service of the Church was performed.—The firing was repeated from the vessel in the river, and the sounds echoed from the woods and hills around.

Three general discharges by the infantry—the cavalry, and 11 pieces of artillery, which lined the banks of the Potomac back of the Vault, paid the last tribute to the entombed Commander in Chief of the Armies of the United States and to the departed Hero.

Hue Fighting Fatal to Marine

Byron L. Brown

Marine Pfc. Byron L. Brown, 20, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Brown, 530 Coleman Ave., received a message that he was missing in action, received a telegram yesterday that he had been killed near Hue, South Vietnam, Feb. 9.

The parents received a letter from their son, written Feb. 2, written at Phu Bai stating:

"A buddy and I were eating in the mess hall here, and the building was blown out, and we're now a roving battalion. We're headed tomorrow for a place called Hue, pronounced "Way", where the action is."

Brown entered marine training in May of 1967 in Jacksonville, Fla., and according to his father, was determined to make the corps in spite of a slight inner ear defect. His parents then lived in Titusville, Fla., where the father worked for an electric power company.

Brown received basic infantry training at Camp LeJeune, N. C., and graduated at Parris Island, S. C., where he was cited as "outstanding recruit" of platoon 179 at closing ceremonies. He went to Vietnam in October.

He was born in Wellsville in Montgomery county, where he attended elementary school and high school. He was graduated there two years ago. He spent a year in the Dave Rankin trade school, St. Louis, studying refrigeration and air conditioning.

The family moved to Sikeston last fall, where the father is employed by the Sikeston Light and Water Co.

Surviving besides his parents are one sister, Mrs. Brenda Kern, St. Peters, and a brother, Boyd Brown, Sikeston; and his paternal grandparents, C. W. and Minnie Brown, Lancaster, Wis.

When the body arrives, services will be in Wellsville. Burial will be in Sullivan.

FBI Probes Soviet Embassy Bomb Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) - Working under President Johnson's personal order to clear up the case quickly, police and FBI agents probing a bomb explosion at the Soviet Embassy are exploring a possible link with a dynamite theft in nearby Virginia.

They said Wednesday night they had "several leads" on the case.

Eighteen sticks of dynamite and 50 blasting caps were reported stolen from a construction site in West Springfield, Va., a Washington suburb.

The theft was noticed Wednesday shortly after the predawn explosion shook the four-story embassy, just four blocks from the White House.

No one was hurt in the blast but it did slight damage to a first-floor office and reception room, shattered windows in nearby buildings and shook U.S.-Soviet relations.

The Soviet government formally protested the incident, accused the United States of providing inadequate protection and demanded compensation.

Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk expressed regrets but the State Department rejected the charge of inadequate protection. There were indications the Soviets would be compensated.

One embassy official said the explosion could have been the work of fanatics inflamed by a three-day mock trial of communism which ended Wednesday on the Goergetown University campus in Washington. It was sponsored by a coalition of anti-Communist groups and included lengthy testimony concerning prison torture and religious persecution in Iron Curtain countries.

Police had no comment on this theory.

Democrat Backed Remap Bill Rams Through House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Majority Democrats today rammed the Beckerle plan for congressional redistricting through the House on an 84-66 vote.

That gave the controversial bill just two more than the necessary affirmative votes for House passage.

It came after more than an hour of bitter argument in which Republican minority members teamed with Negro Democrats to oppose the bill as a gerrymander.

Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton minority leader, called it a bill "conceived in iniquity and born out of wedlock." He said the House had reached "the pinnacle of unfairness" in passing such a measure.

Much of the debate was carried on a St. Louis television station.

Rep. Joseph Beckerle, D-St. Louis, said he drafted the districts because he thought the House should pass a bill that would meet the standards set by the federal courts in their one man-one vote decisions.

He said the population variances were less than 1 per cent but he conceded the districts could have been more compact.

Beckerle said it was not the bill of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, that he had never talked with the governor about redistricting.

Hearnes was in the office of Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, where he could hear the arguments on the House floor over a loudspeaker.

The governor said he heard the arguments but was in Cantrell's office primarily to discuss changes the Senate had made in his budget bills.

Rep. Deverne (caps D V) Calloway, D-St. Louis, one of the 12 Negro democrats in the House, denounced "The technique by which this bill has been foisted on us -- it is the most treacherous act since Brutus stabbed Caesar in the belly."

The bill was brought up Tuesday as a substitute for a bill that had been gathering dust on the shelf. The surprise move caught the Republicans and the Negroes unprepared. They were prepared today but lacked the numbers necessary to stop the the Beckerle bill.

Another Negro, Rep. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, said some Democrats -- he called them pseudo-liberals -- tell the Negroes they want to give them equality. Then, he said, the Democrats use the Negro votes but give nothing in return.

Rep. James P. Troupe, D-St. Louis, another Negro and the Democratic caucus chairman, called it "a bitter taste and will be hard to swallow. This bill does not meet the wishes of 40 per cent of the voters in St. Louis and 100 per cent of the Negroes."

The Republican party has said it will use its organization to seek the referral petitions necessary for putting the Beckerle redistricting plan to a statewide voter test. Today Calloway said the Negroes of St. Louis would help the Republicans.

Besides the minority Republicans and the Negro Democrats these other Democratic members voted against the Beckerle bill:

Reps. Gladys Marriott of Kansas City, Reynolds D. (Pete) Rodgers of Kansas City, Ken Growney of Kansas City, Thomas D. Graham of Jefferson City, Donald Gralike of LeMay and Carl Niewoehner of Columbia.

House passage of the redistricting bill apparently will let the Senate recess during next week. The Senate finished work on the budget bills Wednesday and recessed on condition the House would pass a redistricting bill.

The Senate agreed for the most part with its Appropriations Committee as it cut back on the funds passed by the House. But it still made enough additions to top the governor's recommendations by $2 million.

The Senate would have slipped under the governor's figures if it weren't for a late decision to allocate some $3.5 million in additional building funds for the state's universities and colleges.

That amount was to replace federal funds which were expected last year but weren't received.

While the Senate Appropriations Committee had done quite a bit of paring, the full Senate took out another big chunk when it dropped a proposed $3.8 million for a children's mental health center at Fulton.

The biggest additions made by the Senate to committee figures came when it restored House-approved amounts of $1 million for a parking building at St. Louis University, and $961,000 for a dietary facility at the St. Louis State School and Hospital.

Here is a district by district alignment of the Congressional redistricting plan passed by the Missouri House today:

Airliner Flies Hijacker to Cuba

MIAMI Fla. (AP) - A gunman wearing a white cowboy hat and tennis shoes pushed a stewardess into the cockpit of a DC8 jet over Florida Wednesday and held a pistol under her ear until the pilot detoured his craft and 109 persons to a landing in Cuba.

About five hours after the hijacking, Delta Air Line Flight 843 returned to Miami, leaving behind in Havana a young man who gave his name to the airline as "S. Wilson."

In Havana, the hijacker was identified as Lawrence Rhodes, 29, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who asked for political asylum. The government announced it was studying his request.

The man boarded the Chicago-Miami flight with 64 other persons at Tampa. Other passengers said he had been drinking heavily at the airport bar.

Delta officials said he bought a $21 first class ticket at 12:44 p.m. Wednesday in the airline's downtown Tampa ticket office. It was a one-way ticket to Miami.

"He told us he didn't care who he killed or how badly he shot up the plane," said Joy Bleil, 28, of Elmwood Park, Ill. Mrs. Bleil, the senior stewardess, was held in the cockpit as a hostage until the giant, $8 million airliner was escorted into Cuba by four MIG fithers and touched down at Jose Martin airport.

"He said he was facing a death sentence for the hijacking anyway," said the pert brunette in a news conference by the crew at Miami International Airport.

In Havana earlier, speaking with an Associated Press newsman, Mrs. Bleil said, "I don't know why he did this, but I can still feel that cold thing (the pistol) below my ear."

The pilot, J. D. Gainey, 49, said the crew made no attempt to overpower the hijacker.

"The man was all wrought up," Gainey said.

He was described as about 25, dressed in a sloppy manner, dark complexioned and claiming to be South American although he spoke with no apparent accent.

At 3:37 p.m. seven minutes after the jet took off from Tampa airport with 102 passengers and a crew of seven, the flight was hijacked over Florida's Lake Okeechobee. The plane landed at Havana at 4:29 p.m. It took off again for the United States at 7:36 p.m. and arrived at Miami at 8:17 p.m.

This was the first commercial airliner hijacked over the United States to land in Cuba. In 1961, a Pan American flight was diverted over Mexico to Cuba. Two National Airlines flights were hijacked in flight but passengers and crew disarmed the hijackers and the planes landed in the United States. Many small planes have been successfully hijacked to Cuba.

Passengers said they were treated well during the airport stopover in Havana. Some were interviewed and photographed by Cuban newsmen, they said. Others brought back souvenirs including Cuban rum, some of which was consumed on the return flight, and political posters.

"They gave us Cuban coffee and juice and permitted us to go through the airport," said Lex Hawkins, 42, a lawyer from Des Moines, Iowa.

Trip Revives Rumor Jackie Kennedy to Marry

MONTREAL (AP) - Mrs. John F. Kennedy took her children to Canada Wednesday for a skiing holiday, touching off rumors that she was on her way to marry Lord Harlech. There were quick denials from the British peer and from a spokesman for her Canadian host.

"There is no truth at all in the rumors," the 49-year-old peer told a newsman in London. "I am not seeing Mrs. Kennedy in the near future. There is no question of an engagement or anything like that."

Rumors that Mrs. Kennedy planned to fly on to London to meet Harlech were denied by a member of the Timmins family at whose country estate she and her children are staying.

"We're here to ski," the member of the family said. "After the weekend, we're all heading back to Montreal, I suppose."

Mrs. Kennedy, Caroline and John, are staying with in-laws of her press secretary, Mrs. Robert Timmins, in Ste. Agathe, Que., about 55 miles northwest of Montreal.

The Timmins family spokesman laughed when asked whether Lord Harlech was coming to Ste. Agatha.

"That's too funny," he said. The latest rash of marriage rumors stemmed from an item in the New York newspaper Women's Wear Daily. It said the "hottest rumor in town" was that Mrs. Kennedy and Lord Harlech would be married on Washington's Birthday.

Harlech was amabassador to Washington during the Kennedy administration. His wife was killed in an automobile accident last May 31, and Mrs. Kennedy flew to England for her funeral.

Train Hits East Prairie Woman's Car

Joyce McClendon, 32, East Prairie, escaped serious injury when her 1964 Ford was struck Wednesday at 3:25 p.m. at a railroad crossing near Anniston, the state patrol reported.

She did not see the approaching Cotton Belt freight train. The engineer was A. L. Sebright, 58, Scott City. The car was struck by the engine. This caused her to lose control and strike a telephone pole.

She was treated at the Frazier clinic in Charleston.

Selena Burres, 24, Rector, Ark., was injured in a two-car collision Wednesday at 4 p.m. on highway 84, two miles of Kennett, when a 1962 Ford, in which she was a passenger, collided with a 1958 Ford, driven by Riley Treat, 35, Kennett. The injured woman was in a car driven by Winford Burress, 26, Rector.

The Treat car attempted to make a left turn when the driver of the Burress car attempted to pass.

Mrs. Burress received a chest injury and scratches on her forehead. She was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

Both drivers were arrested, Treat for failure to transfer his license, and the Burress woman for careless and imprudent driving and passing at an intersection.

A 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Shirley Phillips, 31, Marston, attempted to make a right turn onto a gravel road, when it was struck in the rear by a 1967 Ford, driven by Frank Galordi, 43, Memphis, at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday at the south edge of Marston.

OUR DEBT TO WASHINGTON GROWS IN RETROSPECT

Among modern revolutionary leaders George Washington occupies a position so special as to appear almost unique. Indeed, in view of the world's subsequent experience with such figures, it becomes increasingly difficult to think of him as a revolutionist at all, despite his enormous contribution to the violent overthrow of one government and the substitution of another having a radically different concept of the relationship between the ruler and the ruled.

To be sure, the American Revolution has turned out to be atypical in many respects. But, as we look back over the course of similar movements during the nearly two centuries that have elapsed since then, perhaps no single factor seems to differentiate it more sharply than the quality of the men in charge at the time. Nor, of these, does any other emerge as having exerted a more pervasive influence, once the key decision was reached.

On this Washington's birthday, international attention is glued to the performance of a man who might be called, by contemporary standards, the super-revolutionist of all ages -- the first man ever openly to seek to make revolution a permanent way of life for his people. Past revolutions have had definable, if not always completely attainable, objectives. Mao Tse-tung, however, now gives every indication of considering the revolutionary process virtually an end in itself. And the struggle today within Red China more and more takes on the aspect of a continuing rejection not only of the preceding society but even of what the Chinese Revolution has accomplished thus far.

The original leaders of the French Revolution soon canceled themselves out. The Robespierres, the Dantons and the Marats gave way to a Napoleon, with the consequent subversion of the ideals they had professed. The initial impetus of the Russian Revolution was still more shirt-lived, as Lenin and Trotsky overcame Kerensky and installed a totally different alternative to the Czarist, regime than he had envisaged. Mao, by contrast, has succeeded in dominating (at least, to the present moment) the political elaboration of what he earlier achieved through military means.

In a remote sense, therefore, there are certain parallels here with Washington's career as a revolutionist. But how remote! The comparison breaks down spectacularly, as soon as the American Revolution entered its consolidation phase. Nevertheless, before that, the commanding general's was not so much the role of innovator of revolutionary ideas, as of a superb military leader who could win the opportunity to put them into practice.

With ths contribution, Washington hoped his service was concluded. He had no taste for theoretical disputation, still less for political controversy. Yet, however reluctantly, he was compelled to return to the public arena and preside not only over the sorting out of those ideas in the Constitutional Convention but over their highly experimental implementation, as first President of the United States.

What Washington had to offer, as a matter of fact, might look superficially to be the reverse of the characteristics now commonly associated with the image of a true revolutionist -- stability, moderation and a massive integrity which abhorred expedient action in the pursuit of moral goals. It is no wonder that we celebrate him as the father of his country, while a leader like Mao seeks to be remembered primarily for his revolutionary zeal in rooting out indiscriminately all trace of China's traditional values. Or that our debt of gratitude grows in proportion as we see how uncertainly and painfully such fundamental changes have since been effected elsewhere.

A nationally circulated magazine carried a full page, color advertisement recently describing the wonders of Missouri as a tourist attraction.

How timely!

We do not know how much the state has to spend, how flexible is the budget or how far in advance an advertising campaign has to be planned in advance.

We do know that this is the year to emphasize Missouri as a tourist attraction.

Missouri not only has much to offer but tourism already is one of its most profitable industries.

Because of the restrictions on foreign travel and the appeals of President Lyndon B. Johnson and other administration officials to the patriotism of Americans to travel in the United States this year, travel in Missouri advertising should be more profitable than it has in the past.

Since more people are going to travel within the boundaries of the continental United States this year than ever before, Missouri should exert an uncommon effort to make certain that it gets its share of the business.

Missourians can help by treating visitors courteously and by doing everything they can to make their stay in the state a pleasant experience. There is such a thing as repeat business. Happy travelers spread the word and induce others to come.

The major domestic airlines already are planning big advertising campaigns featuring travel in the United States.

Missouri's advertising efforts will tie in well with this emphasis by the airlines and other commercial interests promoting travel in the United States.

Let's really show 'em what we've got.

Long Island Lighting Company and the Connecticut Light & Power Company have announced they will build the longest underwater electric transmission line in the United States. Work on the line is scheduled to begin immediately with operation set for mid-1970. Cost of the underwater power line including terminal facilities is expected to be $8 million, to be shared by the two companies. The line will be able to carry up to 300,000 kilowatts of electricity. The project will consist of seven cables to be laid 1,000 feet apart, providing two 138,000-volt circuits of three cables each.

If George Washington, whose birthday is today, could wake up and look around, what would he think of the country he was so largely responsible for? Doubtless he would like the modern things that have come about, the tremendous growth in size and population of our nation. Would he like that fraction of our people who leave the country to escape serving in its armed forces? Would he like the huge number of criminals who occupy the prisons? Would he like the sizable percentage of the population it takes to maintain law, or to put it another way, would he be shocked at the number of people who are unwilling to respect the rights of others and obey the law? We feel confident George Washington never dreamed of the power and prestige which is that of the United States today.

NEW YORK (AP) - On the 236th anniversary of his birth, George Washington is hardly a popular teen-age pinup hero.

First called "the father of his country" during the American Revolution, his fate - like that of many of today's modern fathers-is to be somewhat misunderstood and taken for granted by his children.

The youth of our land have been a bit mistrustful of Washington ever since 1800, when Parson Mason L. Weems, in writing a life story of our first president, invented the famous cherry tree tale.

"I can't tell a lie, Pa," he quoted young George as saying. "You know I can't tell a lie. I did cut it with my little hatchet."

The fable has probably hurt the influence of George Washington upon youth more than anything he ever actually did or didn't do in his remarkable life. To every kid since then it has made him appear as a prissy, sanctimonious prig.

He wasn't that way at all, of course. By rights he should be one of the greatest of teen-age heroes, and a model for them to emulate. For he had his troubles as a teen-ager, too.

Acne is a source of acute embarrassment to sensitive adolescents. George didn't have that, so far as we know. But his features were disfigured by a scar on his left cheek, a black mole under his right ear and deep facial pits left by an attack of smallpox.

He was tall, a bit gawky, sickly.

Left fatherless and shillingless at 11, he dropped out of school before he was 17 and became a surveyor. It would have been easy for him to become a wilderness bum, but he didn't.

He yearned for greatness instead. He educated himself by reading, wrote out his own rules of conduct that guided him throughout his life. The main thing: he decided himself to become a man worthy of his own respect. Nobody made up the rules for him.

At maturity the spartan life of the frontier had turned him into an imposing figure. He stood 6 feet 2, weighed 175 pounds, had blue eyes, sandy hair, broad, sloping shoulders.

He had built physical strength in his body and a will of iron determination, all through his own choice of self-discipline.

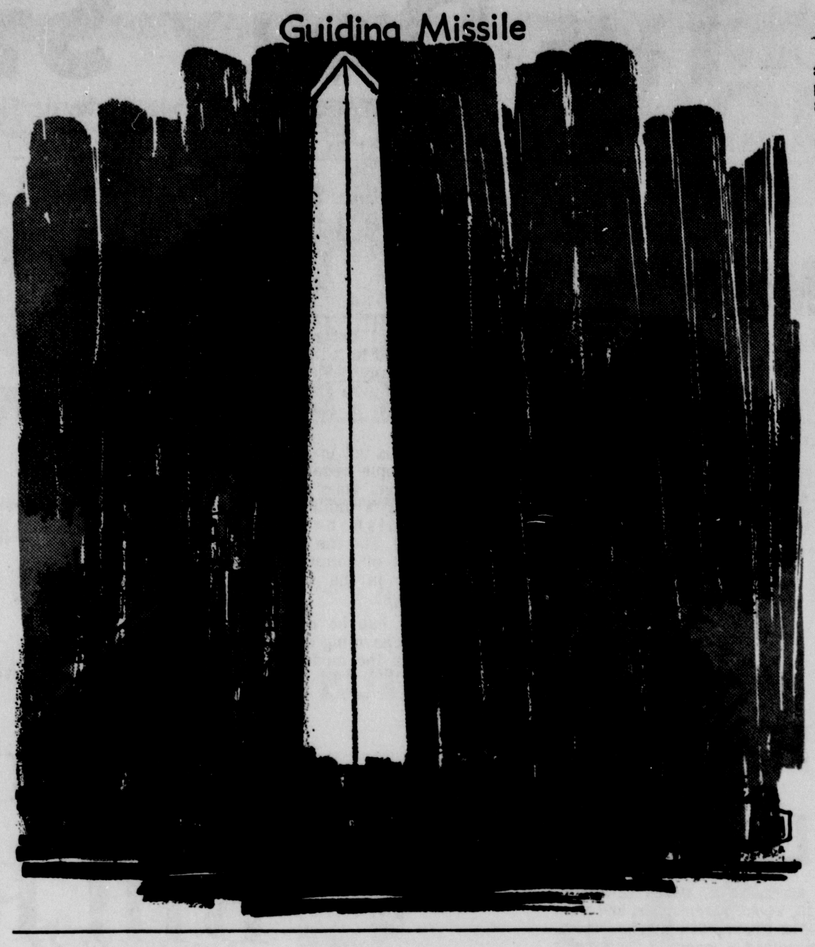

Although he was to meet temporary failure many times, he never ceased to persevere until he met with final victory. He simply didn't know how to quit.

It was the traits he had acquired as a teen-ager in the wilderness-- patience, fortitude, tenacity-- that enabled him to win the long drawn out battle for American independence.

He might have been named king. The idea appalled him. The new nation twice unanimously elected him president. Finer minds than his were available, but his countrymen knew of no one whose character they trusted more.

Washington has been too often pictured as remote, austere and unapproachable. But in truth he was a lively man, a man with strong passions he had to fight to keep under control.

Long-haired teen-agers, who fight parental attempts to get them to shear their locks, might be comforted by this fact: George Washington was something of a long-hair, too. He saved his country while wearing a powdered wig.

Accidents caused an estimated 112,000 deaths in the United States during 1967, about 1,000 less than in 1966, with the accident death rate dropping a little below 57 per 100,000 population, according to statisticians. Nevertheless, this annual rate was higher than in any year during the previous decade except 1966, when it reached 57.7.

The decline in accident fatalities in the year just closed reflected in large measure the reduced toll from injuries in and about the home. A little over 28,500 persons sustained fatal injuries in such mishaps, a decrease of nearly 1,000 from the number in 1966.

Motor vehicle accidents during 1967 accounted for approximately the same number of deaths as the record high of 53,000 in 1966. Preliminary information indicates that despite an increase in the volume of travel, the motor vehicle accident death rate per 100 million miles traveled was slightly below the rate of 5.7 recorded for 1966.

Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment caused slightly fewer deaths than in 1966 when the total was 14,500; approximately 3,000 of these deaths were caused by motor vehicle accidents and were also included in the 53,000 fatalities above. Public accidents other than those involving motor vehicles resulted in about 19,500 fatalities, the same as in 1966.

IT MIGHT BE CATCHING

When there is a problem to be solved or a project to be completed, too many people have a tendency to say, "let George do it." The trouble is that today "George", all too often, turns out to be the federal government.

It is refreshing and encouraging to find the people of Thomaston, Connecticut, pitching in with work and money to accomplish by their own effort what they feel is necessary for the betterment of their community. They have set out to raise some $25,000 required to renovate and reopen the town's 79-year-old opera house.

This is a big job for the people of a small community to accomplish. They deserve support on two counts. First of all, they have the perception and good sense to seek preservation of a town landmark of artistic beauty and historical significance. Too many cities and towns turn their fine old buildings over to the bulldozers in favor of characterless chrome and glass cube buildings. Secondly, any revival of citizen and community self-reliance is good news for the whole country. It could be catching, and if it should spread far enough, it might even save us from big-brother government and national bankruptcy.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: 38th Parallel GI guards have nerve-wracking job; no combat ribbons reward their dangerous patrol; North Koreans attack while we respect DMZ.

(Editor's Note: Immediately after the USS Pueblo was seized, Jack Anderson flew to Korea. There he got an exclusive interview with President Park, was first to report on the unhappiness of South Korea with the United States -- a situation which became so acute that President Johnson sent his trouble-shooter, Cyrus Vance, to pacify the Koreans. Today Anderson reports from the U.S. side of the 38th Parallel.)

ALONG THE 38TH PARALLEL -- The eye-watering cold made it difficult to focus, but across the demilitarized zone, in a crotch in the mountains, I could pick out the shadowy figures of North Korean soldiers.

"We don't worry about the ones you can see," remarked Capt. Fred Hoxie, Jr., with a grin. He is an amiable Negro from Houston, Tex., whose company mans the sandbagged trenches and bunkers at observation Post Dort.

They were bracing for the sudden burst of machinegun and grenade fire that might clobber their positions after dark. Hoxie pulled up a panel of chicken wire and secured it to a nail.

"This helps to deflect the grenades," he explained.

For the GIs who guard this rugged, 18-mile stretch of the 151-mile demarcation line, there had been only two quiet nights in two weeks. Yet they collect none of the combat pay which goes to all GIs in Vietnam, including those who man the filing cabinets and swivel chairs at Pentagon East in Saigon.

As dusk began to settle over the post, the men in the bunkers gripped their rifles nervously and tightened their wool-lined parkas. Under the parka, each wore a 16-pound flak jacket, regular jacket, woolly shirt and long johns. Still they shivered. For the icy breath of Siberia, blowing down from the North, plunges the mercury to Polar temperatures.

Hoxie fixed the fieldglasses on a huge black box on the North Korean side mounted on a ridge. It was a loudspeaker, he said, which often blares forth music and propaganda.

"Guess we aren't going to get our evening serenade tonight," he said, disappointed.

SAVAGE KOREAN COLD

But from a cluster of ice-crusted birch trees below came the chatter of ornithological propaganda from some black-and-white magpies. They seemed to be complaining that the weather was fit only for penguins. A departing jeep, grinding down the steep incline, flushed out a pheasant. And, nearby, a rustle in the brown brush gave away the presence of a knee-high Korean deer.

I ducked out of the savage cold into a room at the rear of the observation post. Eight or nine GIs were huddled in the gloom around a charcoal burner. Some were finishing off C rations. Others were preparing sleeping bags for "ambush patrol."

After dark, they would slip out of the bunkers and plant their sleeping bags in the paths that North Korean patrols might take. The GI sentries would crawl into the bags and lie silently on the frozen ground, their M-14 rifles ready for action. It was dreary, dangerous duty, for which the army would give them no recognition, not even a combat ribbon.

As they made their preparations, they talked about "Joe" might be doing. This is the name they give the enemy on the Korean front, just as the men in Vietnam speak of the enemy as "Charlie."

Pfc. Paul Bugaj, a thin-faced soldier from Buffalo, N.Y., recalled how Tower 38, the next observation post down the line, had been jumped a couple nights earlier. He was assigned to a seven man, quick-reaction squad, which stood by ready to rush to the aid of any outpost that was bushwacked. The squad holed up in the dingy room behind observation Post Dort. Outside, an armored personnel carrier, weapons already aboard, was poised for a fast take-off.

Because of the bitter cold, they had to start the motor every two hours to keep it from freezing. Bugaj said he had gone outside about 3:40 a.m. to start up the "track," as he called it. suddenly, the night was shattered by two grenade explosions and machingun fire coming from Tower 38.

SUDDEN GRENADE ATTACK

The quick-reaction squad poured out of the room and piled into the "track." Sgt. Tom Romzeck of Helena, Mich., slammed down next to Bugaj. The curly-haired Romzeck was eligible to go home and could have remained behind.

"I'll go out with you one more time," he had told his buddies.

Each man gripped his rifle tensely as the "track" roared toward Tower 38, Specialist Edward Ingram from New York's Harlem at the wheel. Its approach must have scared off the North Koreans. Abruptly they stopped firing.

At the tower, the squad found Sgt. Gran Cunningham, Jr., of Washington, D.C., with a shrapnel gash above his right eye. One of the South Koreans also had a leg ripped by shrapnel.

The rescue squad called for flares from the field artillery in the rear, but not a flare appeared. So, in total darkness, the GIs moved cautiously down the steep slope, keeping within arms' reach of one another. They found some soviet hand grenades and expended machinegun shells, but the infiltrations had disappeared into the night.

"Can't figure why they didn't fire those flares," grumped Bugaj.

"They would have landed in the DMZ," explained Capt. Hoxie. "That would have been a violation of the armistice."

"You mean," I asked incredulously, "that a North Korean patrol sneaks across the DMZ and attacks one of our towers, yet we won't even fire a couple of flares because the shells might land in the DMZ?"

Hoxie grinned sardonically.

Tower 38 was closed to newspapermen, but I stopped at Tower 36 which also had been hit. Sgt. Jackie brush of Columbus, Ohio, said a burst of automatic fire had whined just past his head.

Dusk had now settled over the DMZ. Lt. Robert Librook of Franklin, Ind., cast an anxious eye at the ominously overcast sky.

"It's going to be a black night," he said.

An Indian was girl-watching on a street corner. As each one approached, he would raise his hand and say, "Chance."

A friend asked him, "Why do you say 'chance'? Why don't you say 'how'?"

"Me know how," said the Indian. "Me just want chance."

BETTER PRESCRIPTION

Every so often emperors have to be reminded that they have no clothes.

The late Sen. Estes Kefauver performed this service for the U. S. drug industry with his investigations of its pricing practices several years ago. Since then, the pharmaceutical manufacturers have been particularly sensitive about their image.

An ongoing public relations campaign has attempted to clothe them in shining white and convince the public that what is good for General Drugs is good for the U.S.A.

Now one of their own has advised them that their underwear is still showing.

George S. Squibb, former vice president of and now consultant to the firm that bears his great-grandfather's name, has told drug companies that they should expect "ordinary profits" but not "windfalls" from the manufacture of products on which the life and well-being of millions depend.

Unless the drug industry reforms itself, he warns, government regulation "is by no means, unrealistic or inconceivable."

Unlike the emperor in the story, however, the drug makers still seem not to have gotten the message.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S ADVICE

Today we celebrated George Washington's Birthday at a time when our beloved country is beset by internal and external confrontations which can easily destroy the great heritage left by the Father of the Republic.

For more than one hundred years we followed Washington's advice and counsel as presented in his Farewell Address of September 19, 1796. Washington told us to refrain from becoming involved in the affairs of other nations, and not to have alliances and agreements with them, or we would start our own downfall. He added that we must not spend more than we take in, and must resist what is now called big government. Even more gimely, he warned against "All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character. . ." which substitutes," . . . in the place of the delegated will of the nation, the will of a . . . small, but artful and enterprising minority.. .but which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people and usurp for themselves the reins of government." He stated that our weakness, which would be exploitied by these "external and internal enemies... often covertly and insidiously directed" were the rights of States and individual liberty.

He counselled: "The name American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism more than any appelation derived from slight shades of difference. . ." As you love your country, ask your favorite newspaper to publish this Address from the greatest of immortals. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

AFTER GARBAGE:

Rockefeller Dispatches Envoy to Labor's High Council To Organize Unions' Political Support in '68.

Washington, D.C.: -- The new left in the Republican party has had its agent on the Florida gold coast mixing with the new class.

As befits the envoy of Nelson Rockefeller to the high command of American labor, the good-will ambassador has had an inexpensive lower floor room in the movement's winter White House, the Hotel Americana, Bal Harbour, Fla., where the AFL-CIO Executive Council has been meeting.

Rockefeller's man, a soft-spoken gentle chap who once waited on tables at Dartmouth, Victor Borella, is on a mission which will have its impact on what is known on the campus as our national destiny.

Borella is there, in a clime so different from his native New England, to make certain that America's most influential labor leaders just don't forget that it was Gov. Nelson Rockefeller who flatly refused to dispatch the National Guard into New York City, garbage or no garbage.

Borella will accomplish his mission. He is unique for many reasons. He doesn't look like the kind of skate with whom the labor leaders, controlling millions in money and manpower, are convivial. But they are -- and often.

He is an intimate friend of union leaders who are the hard core of New York labor -- the building and construction trades. For decades Borella was executive vice president of Rockefeller Center, and so was the man who dealt directly in hundreds of millions of dollars worth of new construction. And, he did not automate the Center's elevators.

But more -- he is close to leaders of white collar unions, the steelworkers and other policy makers. Officially he is a New York State labor consultant. But unofficially he is close to the "family" -- meaning all the Rockefellers.

Furthermore, he is the only man any of the Republican contenders has who can call so many labor leaders by their first names and be received by them as a trusted friend.

Thus, what Nelson Rockefeller lost in the short run among potential national convention delegates and the governors who control them, Vic Borella may well win back in the long run ending early in August.

Borella may well return to the New York governor's Fifth Ave. home with strong private pledges of support regardless of what the AFL - CIO 29-man Executive Council is saying publicly.

Thus, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be able to claim in Miami Beach's smoke - filled rooms next August, that -- as in his 1966 gubernatorial race -- powerful labor unions will support him with manpower, money and literature while giving the usual lip service to the Democratic opponent.

Mr. Rockefeller then can bargain with those who believe that no Republican can win without carrying New York State -- by claiming that he is the one Republican who can swing a powerful labor machine into action.

Why can he do this? There's far more than garbage involved. There's an untold story.

The governor now is making it possible for the labor movement to push its organization drive in the land's most fertile membership field -- public employment. There are between seven and eight million non-federal public service employes -- in the nation's townships, cities, districts (sanitary, etc.), and on state and county payrolls.

In New York alone the figure runs to some 900,000. Only some 250,000 are unionized. At least 26 unions want a piece of this action.

If they succeed -- and it merely takes political influence in some areas -- they will have made the greatest single membership gain since old King Coal, the 88-year-old John L. Lewis, massed his legions outside the steel mills, and walked out of Franklin D. Roosevelt's bedroom with a made-to-order contract that launched the CIO.

At first Nelson Rockefeller had missed the ploy and play. Last Nov. 15 he recognized the bitterly anti-AFL-CIO Independent Civil Service Employes Assn. as the exclusive bargaining agent for virtually all N.Y. State employes, thereby freezing out the big labor federation. Victor Borella was up at his farm and was caught short. Then the AFL-CIO leaders got off some Anglo-Saxon language LeRoi Jones has not yet dreamed of.

So on Dec. 18, just a few days after the national AFL-CIO convention recessed amid sulphurous fumes which filled the hall on the mention of Rockefeller's name, the governor invited AFL-CIO president George Meany and the three most influential state labor leaders to his Manhattan office. They talked for 90 minutes.

After they left, the state union chiefs unveiled the New York State AFL-CIO Public Employes Joint Organizing Council, thereby giving Mr. Rockefeller a chance to switch, and negotiate with them instead of the rival independent civil service outfit.

If the AFL-CIO people can, with one maneuver, gather in hundreds of thousands of public services employes, first in the state employ, and then move on to county, city and town workers, Mr. Rockefeller will have made some powerful allies, Lyndon Johnson or not.

But vital, too, is Gov. Rockefeller's comment, as he saw Meany and company to the door that December day. When asked why the national labor president was there, he retorted:

". . . because what happens in New York State is going to influence what happens nationwide."

Some 800,000 public service employes make a tempting goal.

Obviously garbage was just a symbol of things to come. Special agent Victor Borella is telling the union chiefs Nelson Rockefeller is the workingman's best friend.

OUR DEBT TO WASHINGTON GROWS IN RETROSPECT

Among modern revolutionary leaders George Washington occupies a position so special as to appear almost unique. Indeed, in view of the world's subsequent experience with such figures, it becomes increasingly difficult to think of him as a revolutionist at all, despite his enormous contribution to the violent overthrow of one government and the substitution of another having a radically different concept of the relationship between the ruler and the ruled.

To be sure, the American Revolution has turned out to be atypical in many respects. But, as we look back over the course of similar movements during the nearly two centuries that have elapsed since then, perhaps no single factor seems to differentiate it more sharply than the quality of the men in charge at the time. Nor, of these, does any other emerge as having exerted a more pervasive influence, once the key decision was reached.

On this Washington's birthday, international attention is glued to the performance of a man who might be called, by contemporary standards, the super-revolutionist of all ages -- the first man ever openly to seek to make revolution a permanent way of life for his people. Past revolutions have had definable, if not always completely attainable, objectives. Mao Tse-tung, however, now gives every indication of considering the revolutionary process virtually an end in itself. And the struggle today within Red China more and more takes on the aspect of a continuing rejection not only of the preceding society but even of what the Chinese Revolution has accomplished thus far.

The original leaders of the French Revolution soon canceled themselves out. The Robespierres, the Dantons and the Marats gave way to a Napoleon, with the consequent subversion of the ideals they had professed. The initial impetus of the Russian Revolution was still more shirt-lived, as Lenin and Trotsky overcame Kerensky and installed a totally different alternative to the Czarist, regime than he had envisaged. Mao, by contrast, has succeeded in dominating (at least, to the present moment) the political elaboration of what he earlier achieved through military means.

In a remote sense, therefore, there are certain parallels here with Washington's career as a revolutionist. But how remote! The comparison breaks down spectacularly, as soon as the American Revolution entered its consolidation phase. Nevertheless, before that, the commanding general's was not so much the role of innovator of revolutionary ideas, as of a superb military leader who could win the opportunity to put them into practice.

With ths contribution, Washington hoped his service was concluded. He had no taste for theoretical disputation, still less for political controversy. Yet, however reluctantly, he was compelled to return to the public arena and preside not only over the sorting out of those ideas in the Constitutional Convention but over their highly experimental implementation, as first President of the United States.

What Washington had to offer, as a matter of fact, might look superficially to be the reverse of the characteristics now commonly associated with the image of a true revolutionist -- stability, moderation and a massive integrity which abhorred expedient action in the pursuit of moral goals. It is no wonder that we celebrate him as the father of his country, while a leader like Mao seeks to be remembered primarily for his revolutionary zeal in rooting out indiscriminately all trace of China's traditional values. Or that our debt of gratitude grows in proportion as we see how uncertainly and painfully such fundamental changes have since been effected elsewhere.

A nationally circulated magazine carried a full page, color advertisement recently describing the wonders of Missouri as a tourist attraction.

How timely!

We do not know how much the state has to spend, how flexible is the budget or how far in advance an advertising campaign has to be planned in advance.

We do know that this is the year to emphasize Missouri as a tourist attraction.

Missouri not only has much to offer but tourism already is one of its most profitable industries.

Because of the restrictions on foreign travel and the appeals of President Lyndon B. Johnson and other administration officials to the patriotism of Americans to travel in the United States this year, travel in Missouri advertising should be more profitable than it has in the past.

Since more people are going to travel within the boundaries of the continental United States this year than ever before, Missouri should exert an uncommon effort to make certain that it gets its share of the business.

Missourians can help by treating visitors courteously and by doing everything they can to make their stay in the state a pleasant experience. There is such a thing as repeat business. Happy travelers spread the word and induce others to come.

The major domestic airlines already are planning big advertising campaigns featuring travel in the United States.

Missouri's advertising efforts will tie in well with this emphasis by the airlines and other commercial interests promoting travel in the United States.

Let's really show 'em what we've got.

Accidents caused an estimated 112,000 deaths in the United States during 1967, about 1,000 less than in 1966, with the accident death rate dropping a little below 57 per 100,000 population, according to statisticians. Nevertheless, this annual rate was higher than in any year during the previous decade except 1966, when it reached 57.7.

The decline in accident fatalities in the year just closed reflected in large measure the reduced toll from injuries in and about the home. A little over 28,500 persons sustained fatal injuries in such mishaps, a decrease of nearly 1,000 from the number in 1966.

Motor vehicle accidents during 1967 accounted for approximately the same number of deaths as the record high of 53,000 in 1966. Preliminary information indicates that despite an increase in the volume of travel, the motor vehicle accident death rate per 100 million miles traveled was slightly below the rate of 5.7 recorded for 1966.

Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment caused slightly fewer deaths than in 1966 when the total was 14,500; approximately 3,000 of these deaths were caused by motor vehicle accidents and were also included in the 53,000 fatalities above. Public accidents other than those involving motor vehicles resulted in about 19,500 fatalities, the same as in 1966.

IT MIGHT BE CATCHING

When there is a problem to be solved or a project to be completed, too many people have a tendency to say, "let George do it." The trouble is that today "George", all too often, turns out to be the federal government.

It is refreshing and encouraging to find the people of Thomaston, Connecticut, pitching in with work and money to accomplish by their own effort what they feel is necessary for the betterment of their community. They have set out to raise some $25,000 required to renovate and reopen the town's 79-year-old opera house.

This is a big job for the people of a small community to accomplish. They deserve support on two counts. First of all, they have the perception and good sense to seek preservation of a town landmark of artistic beauty and historical significance. Too many cities and towns turn their fine old buildings over to the bulldozers in favor of characterless chrome and glass cube buildings. Secondly, any revival of citizen and community self-reliance is good news for the whole country. It could be catching, and if it should spread far enough, it might even save us from big-brother government and national bankruptcy.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: 38th Parallel GI guards have nerve-wracking job; no combat ribbons reward their dangerous patrol; North Koreans attack while we respect DMZ.

(Editor's Note: Immediately after the USS Pueblo was seized, Jack Anderson flew to Korea. There he got an exclusive interview with President Park, was first to report on the unhappiness of South Korea with the United States -- a situation which became so acute that President Johnson sent his trouble-shooter, Cyrus Vance, to pacify the Koreans. Today Anderson reports from the U.S. side of the 38th Parallel.)

ALONG THE 38TH PARALLEL --The eye-watering cold made it difficult to focus, but across the demilitarized zone, in a crotch in the mountains, I could pick out the shadowy figures of North Korean soldiers.

"We don't worry about the ones you can see," remarked Capt. Fred Hoxie, Jr., with a grin. He is an amiable Negro from Houston, Tex., whose company mans the sandbagged trenches and bunkers at observation Post Dort.

They were bracing for the sudden burst of machinegun and grenade fire that might clobber their positions after dark. Hoxie pulled up a panel of chicken wire and secured it to a nail.

"This helps to deflect the grenades," he explained.

For the GIs who guard this rugged, 18-mile stretch of the 151-mile demarcation line, there had been only two quiet nights in two weeks. Yet they collect none of the combat pay which goes to all GIs in Vietnam, including those who man the filing cabinets and swivel chairs at Pentagon East in Saigon.

As dusk began to settle over the post, the men in the bunkers gripped their rifles nervously and tightened their wool-lined parkas. Under the parka, each wore a 16-pound flak jacket, regular jacket, woolly shirt and long johns. Still they shivered. For the icy breath of Siberia, blowing down from the North, plunges the mercury to Polar temperatures.

Hoxie fixed the fieldglasses on a huge black box on the North Korean side mounted on a ridge. It was a loudspeaker, he said, which often blares forth music and propaganda.

"Guess we aren't going to get our evening serenade tonight," he said, disappointed.

SAVAGE KOREAN COLD

But from a cluster of ice-crusted birch trees below came the chatter of ornithological propaganda from some black-and-white magpies. They seemed to be complaining that the weather was fit only for penguins. A departing jeep, grinding down the steep incline, flushed out a pheasant. And, nearby, a rustle in the brown brush gave away the presence of a knee-high Korean deer.

I ducked out of the savage cold into a room at the rear of the observation post. Eight or nine GIs were huddled in the gloom around a charcoal burner. Some were finishing off C rations. Others were preparing sleeping bags for "ambush patrol."

After dark, they would slip out of the bunkers and plant their sleeping bags in the paths that North Korean patrols might take. The GI sentries would crawl into the bags and lie silently on the frozen ground, their M-14 rifles ready for action. It was dreary, dangerous duty, for which the army would give them no recognition, not even a combat ribbon.

As they made their preparations, they talked about "Joe" might be doing. This is the name they give the enemy on the Korean front, just as the men in Vietnam speak of the enemy as "Charlie."

Pfc. Paul Bugaj, a thin-faced soldier from Buffalo, N.Y., recalled how Tower 38, the next observation post down the line, had been jumped a couple nights earlier. He was assigned to a seven man, quick-reaction squad, which stood by ready to rush to the aid of any outpost that was bushwacked. The squad holed up in the dingy room behind observation Post Dort. Outside, an armored personnel carrier, weapons already aboard, was poised for a fast take-off.

Because of the bitter cold, they had to start the motor every two hours to keep it from freezing. Bugaj said he had gone outside about 3:40 a.m. to start up the "track," as he called it. suddenly, the night was shattered by two grenade explosions and machingun fire coming from Tower 38.

SUDDEN GRENADE ATTACK

The quick-reaction squad poured out of the room and piled into the "track." Sgt. Tom Romzeck of Helena, Mich., slammed down next to Bugaj. The curly-haired Romzeck was eligible to go home and could have remained behind.

"I'll go out with you one more time," he had told his buddies.

Each man gripped his rifle tensely as the "track" roared toward Tower 38, Specialist Edward Ingram from New York's Harlem at the wheel. Its approach must have scared off the North Koreans. Abruptly they stopped firing.

At the tower, the squad found Sgt. Gran Cunningham, Jr., of Washington, D.C., with a shrapnel gash above his right eye. One of the South Koreans also had a leg ripped by shrapnel.

The rescue squad called for flares from the field artillery in the rear, but not a flare appeared. So, in total darkness, the GIs moved cautiously down the steep slope, keeping within arms' reach of one another. They found some soviet hand grenades and expended machinegun shells, but the infiltrations had disappeared into the night.

"Can't figure why they didn't fire those flares," grumped Bugaj.

"They would have landed in the DMZ," explained Capt. Hoxie. "That would have been a violation of the armistice."

"You mean," I asked incredulously, "that a North Korean patrol sneaks across the DMZ and attacks one of our towers, yet we won't even fire a couple of flares because the shells might land in the DMZ?"

Hoxie grinned sardonically.

Tower 38 was closed to newspapermen, but I stopped at Tower 36 which also had been hit. Sgt. Jackie brush of Columbus, Ohio, said a burst of automatic fire had whined just past his head.

Dusk had now settled over the DMZ. Lt. Robert Librook of Franklin, Ind., cast an anxious eye at the ominously overcast sky.

"It's going to be a black night," he said.

An Indian was girl-watching on a street corner. As each one approached, he would raise his hand and say, "Chance."

A friend asked him, "Why do you say 'chance'? Why don't you say 'how'?"

"Me know how," said the Indian. "Me just want chance."

BETTER PRESCRIPTION

Every so often emperors have to be reminded that they have no clothes.

The late Sen. Estes Kefauver performed this service for the U. S. drug industry with his investigations of its pricing practices several years ago. Since then, the pharmaceutical manufacturers have been particularly sensitive about their image.

An ongoing public relations campaign has attempted to clothe them in shining white and convince the public that what is good for General Drugs is good for the U.S.A.

Now one of their own has advised them that their underwear is still showing.

George S. Squibb, former vice president of and now consultant to the firm that bears his great-grandfather's name, has told drug companies that they should expect "ordinary profits" but not "windfalls" from the manufacture of products on which the life and well-being of millions depend.

Unless the drug industry reforms itself, he warns, government regulation "is by no means, unrealistic or inconceivable."

Unlike the emperor in the story, however, the drug makers still seem not to have gotten the message.

H.L. Hunt Says

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S ADVICE

Today we celebrated George Washington's Birthday at a time when our beloved country is beset by internal and external confrontations which can easily destroy the great heritage left by the Father of the Republic.

For more than one hundred years we followed Washington's advice and counsel as presented in his Farewell Address of September 19, 1796. Washington told us to refrain from becoming involved in the affairs of other nations, and not to have alliances and agreements with them, or we would start our own downfall. He added that we must not spend more than we take in, and must resist what is now called big government. Even more gimely, he warned against "All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character. . ." which substitutes," . . . in the place of the delegated will of the nation, the will of a . . . small, but artful and enterprising minority.. .but which cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people and usurp for themselves the reins of government." He stated that our weakness, which would be exploted by these "external and internal enemies... often covertly and insidiously directed" were the rights of States and individual liberty.

He counselled: "The name American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism more than any appelation derived from slight shades of difference. . ." As you love your country, ask your favorite newspaper to publish this Address from the greatest of immortals. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

AFTER GARBAGE:

Rockefeller Dispatches Envoy to Labor's High Council To Organize Unions' Political Support in '68.

Washington, D.C.: -- The new left in the Republican party has had its agent on the Florida gold coast mixing with the new class.

As befits the envoy of Nelson Rockefeller to the high command of American labor, the good-will ambassador has had an inexpensive lower floor room in the movement's winter White House, the Hotel Americana, Bal Harbour, Fla., where the AFL-CIO Executive Council has been meeting.

Rockefeller's man, a soft-spoken gentle chap who once waited on tables at Dartmouth, Victor Borella, is on a mission which will have its impact on what is known on the campus as our national destiny.

Borella is there, in a clime so different from his native New England, to make certain that America's most influential labor leaders just don't forget that it was Gov. Nelson Rockefeller who flatly refused to dispatch the National Guard into New York City, garbage or no garbage.

Borella will accomplish his mission. He is unique for many reasons. He doesn't look like the kind of skate with whom the labor leaders, controlling millions in money and manpower, are convivial. But they are -- and often.

He is an intimate friend of union leaders who are the hard core of New York labor -- the building and construction trades. For decades Borella was executive vice president of Rockefeller Center, and so was the man who dealt directly in hundreds of millions of dollars worth of new construction. And, he did not automate the Center's elevators.

But more -- he is close to leaders of white collar unions, the steelworkers and other policy makers. Officially he is a New York State labor consultant. But unofficially he is close to the "family" -- meaning all the Rockefellers.

Furthermore, he is the only man any of the Republican contenders has who can call so many labor leaders by their first names and be received by them as a trusted friend.

Thus, what Nelson Rockefeller lost in the short run among potential national convention delegates and the governors who control them, Vic Borella may well win back in the long run ending early in August.

Borella may well return to the New York governor's Fifth Ave. home with strong private pledges of support regardless of what the AFL - CIO 29-man Executive Council is saying publicly.

Thus, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be able to claim in Miami Beach's smoke - filled rooms next August, that -- as in his 1966 gubernatorial race -- powerful labor unions will support him with manpower, money and literature while giving the usual lip service to the Democratic opponent.

Mr. Rockefeller then can bargain with those who believe that no Republican can win without carrying New York State - -- by claiming that he is the one Republican who can swing a powerful labor machine into action.

Why can he do this? There's far more than garbage involved. There's an untold story.

The governor now is making it possible for the labor movement to push its organization drive in the land's most fertile membership field -- public employment. There are between seven and eight million non-federal public service employes -- in the nation's townships, cities, districts (sanitary, etc.), and on state and county payrolls.

In New York alone the figure runs to some 900,000. Only some 250,000 are unionized. At least 26 unions want a piece of this action.

If they succeed -- and it merely takes political influence in some areas -- they will have made the greatest single membership gain since old King Coal, the 88-year-old John L. Lewis, massed his legions outside the steel mills, and walked out of Franklin D. Roosevelt's bedroom with a made-to-order contract that launched the CIO.

At first Nelson Rockefeller had missed the ploy and play. Last Nov. 15 he recognized the bitterly anti-AFL-CIO independent Civil Service Employes Assn. as the exclusive bargaining agent for virtually all N.Y. State employes, thereby freezing out the big labor federation. Victor Borella was up at his farm and was caught short. Then the AFL-CIO leaders got off some Anglo-Saxon language LeRoi Jones has not yet dreamed of.

So on Dec. 18, just a few days after the national AFL-CIO convention recessed amid sulphurous fumes which filled the hall on the mention of Rockefeller's name, the governor invited AFL-CIO president George Meany and the three most influential state labor leaders to his Manhattan office. They talked for 90 minutes.

After they left, the state union chiefs unveiled the New York State AFL-CIO Public Employes Joint Organizing Council, thereby giving Mr. Rockefeller a chance to switch, and negotiate with them instead of the rival independent civil service outfit.

If the AFL-CIO people can, with one maneuver, gather in hundreds of thousands of public services employes, first in the state employ, and then move on to county, city and town workers, Mr. Rockefeller will have made some powerful allies, Lyndon Johnson or not.

But vital, too, is Gov. Rockefeller's comment, as he saw Meany and company to the door that December day. When asked why the national labor president was there, he retorted:

". . . because what happens in New York State is going to influence what happens nationwide."

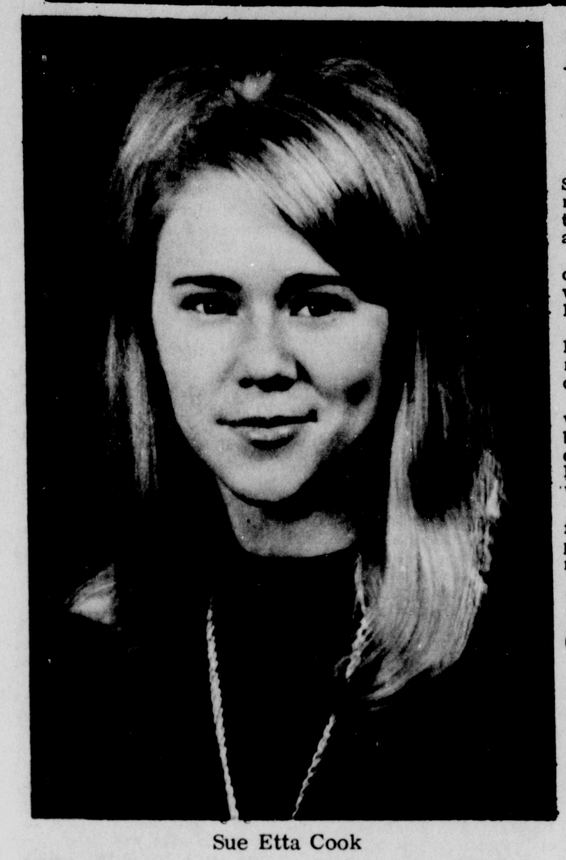

Some 800,000 public service employes make a tempting goal.

Obviously garbage was just a symbol of things to come. Special agent Victor Borella is telling the union chiefs Nelson Rockefeller is the workingman's best friend.

GOT HIM COMING AND GOING

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) James F. Arp, 28, of Casper, found out he had lived in Wyoming too long and not long enough. He was fined in justice court on both counts the same day.

First Arp was fined $35 for swearing a false oath in obtaining a resident hunting license. A year's residency is required and Arp had lived in the state only six months.

Then he was fined $10 for not registering his motor vehicle after having lived in the state more than 120 days.

North Meets South In Semi Finals

GIDEON -- The season is over for a couple of more basketball teams after last night's wins by Holcomb and South Pemiscot.

Semifinal round action is set for Friday night with the top four seeded teams ready to go after the title and a state tournament berth.

Holcomb opened last night's activity by eliminating its host 73-53, utilizing a second quarter press to overcome a 14-9 first quarter deficit. South Pemiscot followed with a 69-51 win over Senath-Hornersville.

Randall Crain led the Hornet's assault with 18 points. Six players got into the scoring column, five of whom had double figures.

Holcomb exploded for 27 points in a disastrous second period for the host and took a commanding 36-26 half time lead as they posted their 18th win.

Gideon was led in the scoring department by Jim Johnson's 16 points. It played the final part of the season and in the tournament without its leading scorer, Jim Coleman, who quit the team during the New Madrid county tournament.

South Pemiscot pulled out into a 16-9 first quarter lead on its way to its 16th win and into the semifinals.

The Bulldogs, led by Joe Allbritton's 19 points, had a rather easy time in posting the win but received a severe blow with its playmaker and rebounder, Lanny Tyler, injured an arm during the third quarter.

Friday night's action starts at 7 p.m. with Holcomb meeting Hayti North and an 8:30 p.m. encounter between North and South Pemiscot.

Last night's win by last year's finalist. . . Matthews and Cape Girardeau Notre Dame completed quarterfinal round action and set the stage for the weekend activity, which will find one of the district's top four rated teams going into the state tournament, winning the toughest regional in the state.

All four of the finalists. . . Oran, Matthews, Scott Central and Notre Dame have 20-game winning seasons and have lost but eight games combined.

Then comes the big night Saturday. . . Where the two losers face each other in the 7 p.m. opener and then the winners clash. . . at 8:30 p.m.

Matthews looked far from its late season showing as Woodland sped through the Pirates famed defense to stay in contention until the final period when Matthews tightened up to hold the Cardinals to 10 points.

Jim Hart's Pirates pulled to a 19-12 first period lead and held the upper hand during the encounter. They were never able to pull out for the big lead.

Leonard Bishop was his usual self on offense and defense. The Pirates star guard sizzled in 22 points while running mate Amon Ring added 15 and teammates Ernest Hardin 13, Steve McElyea 12 and James Rowe 10.

The win was the 28th for the Pirates.

Notre Dame balanced its scoring with four men in double figures and hit the 20-point mark in each of the four periods.

The big gun for the Bulldogs though was forward Dave Halter who rang up 21 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for the night.

Upsets Fall on District Favorites

Class S district basketball favorite, Clarkton, bowed out of the regional tournament at Clarkton last night. It suffered a 71-68 setback at the hands of upstart Cooter.

Advance fell in another upset of class S favorites. Bell City moved into the semi-finals with a 73-57 win at Advance.

Four teams remain in the running with the final two nights of action set for Clarkton after first round and quarterfinal round play was split between Clarkton and Advance.

Howardville moved into the favorites. It crushed 22-game winner Southland 92-70 while Delta, ast year's third place finisher, shot past Oak Ridge, 67-32.

Possibly the tournament will be decided tomorrow night as Howardville takes on Delta in the nightcap at 8:30 p.m. after Bell City locks horns with unseeded Cooter in the 7 p.m. opener.

The class S regional winner Saturday night will open state tournament action Monday at Cape Girardeau, where it faces the Lesterville regional champion.

At Clarkton

If there is to be a Cinderella team from Southeast Missouri the Cooter Wildcats will have to be it. It is the only unseeded team to advance into the semi-finals of area regional tournament play and with the recent credentials of the Cats. . . they just might have what it takes. They moved past the district's favorite after trimming Southland in a match Friday.

The win was only the ninth of the year for the Cats, who have been doormates to grid teams in the Bootheel until opening of the 1967-68 season.

"They just wanted the game more than we," remarked M. M. McMahon, coach of the Reindeer, who ended their season with a 21-6 record.

Cooter grabbed an early 21-12 first quarter lead and held on for the victory. It fired in 11 free throws in the final period and 21 for the game. Clarkton netted four charity shots. It committed six personals.

Clarkton had four men in double figures, with Bill Chism leading the group with 17 points. Danny Richardson added 16, Larry Jordan 15 and Steve DeLong 10.

Ben Flowers topped all scorers. He fired in 26 points to lead a five-man scoring attack of the Wildcats, which included four with double figures.

Howardville fired into the semi-finals with an impressive 92-70 win over Southland. It broke the game open in the second period after pulling to a 17-14 first period lead.

The win was the 15th of the season for Coach William C. Jackson's Hawks against six setbacks.

The four-inch height disadvantage was too much for the Rebels to overcome. The six foot-seven inch twins of the Hawks led the assault with Ruben Marsh topping with 24 points. Lewis Little dumped in 20.

At Advance

Delta's defense was too much for Oak Ridge. A 10 point middle game spread was disastrous. It trailed by four points, 13-9, at the end of the first period.

Joe Kight and Ronny Cook teamed to pace the Bobcats with 19 and 16 points.

Roger Thomas flipped in 11 points to lead Oak Ridge.

Bell City capitalized on Advance fouls to post its 73-57 upset victory.

The Cubs fired a 16-11 first quarter lead and held that slim margin throughout on their way into the semifinals and to an 11-13 record.

John Moroni ended his playing career for the Hornets with a 23-point night as they finished with a 15-12 record.

Majors Get Pay Hike

NEW YORK AP - Most major league baseball spring training camps are just on the verge of opening, but a lot of rookies have already received some good news. Three thousand dollars worth of good news.

One of the most important provisions of an agreement between club owners and the players Association that was announced Wednesday was the raising of the minimum major- league salary from $7,000 a year to $10,000.

In addition, the players won some other monetary concessions including an increase in meal allowances, spring training expenses and a lessening of the amount salaries may be reduced from one season to the next.

Top non-economic concessions included studies of possible alternatives to the reserve clause and of the length of the season, both to be completed next year.

The agreement was announced by John J. Gaherin, advisor to the owners' player relations committee. Negotiations for the owners were carried on by Joe Cronin, president of the American League; Warren Giles, president of the National League; Gaherin and other lawyers.

The agreement is for two years and was made effective as of last Jan. 1.

North Meets South In Semi Finals

GIDEON -- The season is over for a couple of more basketball teams after last night's wins by Holcomb and South Pemiscot.

Semifinal round action is set for Friday night with the top four seeded teams ready to go after the title and a state tournament berth.

Holcomb opened last night's activity by eliminating its host 73-53, utilizing a second quarter press to overcome a 14-9 first quarter deficit. South Pemiscot followed with a 69-51 win over Senath-Hornersville.

Randall Crain led the Hornet's assault with 18 points. Six players got into the scoring column, five of whom had double figures.

Holcomb exploded for 27 points in a disastrous second period for the host and took a commanding 36-26 half time lead as they posted their 18th win.

Gideon was led in the scoring department by Jim Johnson's 16 points. It played the final part of the season and in the tournament without its leading scorer, Jim Coleman, who quit the team during the New Madrid county tournament.

South Pemiscot pulled out into a 16-9 first quarter lead on its way to its 16th win and into the semifinals.

The Bulldogs, led by Joe Allbritton's 19 points, had a rather easy time in posting the win but received a severe blow with its playmaker and rebounder, Lanny Tyler, injured an arm during the third quarter.

Friday night's action starts at 7 p.m. with Holcomb meetin Hayti North and an 8:30 p.m. encounter between North and South Pemiscot.

SNEAK ATTACK? Not quite, as a Woodland Cardinal basketball player grabs loose ball in basketball game with Matthews last night. Matthews won 80-53.

Early Fan Gets A Seat

SCOTT CITY -- Hear ye. . . hear all. . .

The line starts forming at the Illmo-Scott City high school gymnasium Friday and Saturday nights at 5 p.m. and semifinal and final round action of the class M regional basketball tournament are set to get underway.

Last night's win by last year's finalist. . . Matthews and Cape Girardeau Notre Dame completed quarterfinal round action and set the stage for the weekend activity, which will find one of the district's top four rated teams going into the state tournament, winning the toughest regional in the state.

All four of the finalists. . . Oran, Matthews, Scott Central and Notre Dame have 20-game winning seasons and have lost but eight games combined.

Friday night's first game will pair the rivalry of Oran and Scott county Central. . . the fifth meeting between the two this season with both taking a pair of wins. That gets underway at 7 p.m.

Second on the agenda Friday night will be the match of last year's finalist. . . Matthews and Notre Dame. . . with the latter the defending tournament champion and third place state finisher.

Then comes the big night Saturday. . . Where the two losers face each other in the 7 p.m. opener and then the winners clash. . . at 8:30 p.m.

Matthews looked far from its late season showing as Woodland sped through the Pirates famed defense to stay in contention until the final period when Matthews tightened up to hold the Cardinals to 10 points.

Jim Hart's Pirates pulled to a 19-12 first period lead and held the upper hand during the encounter. They were never able to pull out for the big lead.

Leonard Bishop was his usual self on offense and defense. The Pirates star guard sizzled in 22 points while running mate Amon Ring added 15 and teammates Ernest Hardin 13, Steve McElyea 12 and James Rowe 10.

The win was the 28th for the Pirates.

Woodland was paced in scoring by Randy Maness, who chalked up 19 points.

All-Stater Greg Flaker paced the defending tournament champion Notre Dame to its tournament win over Chaffee, 96-64.

Notre Dame balanced its scoring with four men in double figures and hit the 20-point mark in each of the four periods.

The big gun for the Bulldogs though was forward Dave Halter who rang up 21 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for the night.

Top Four Paired; Semi Finals Tonight

BLOOMFIELD -- The setting . . . Bloomfield's beautiful gymnasium.

Yes, that's where the basketball action is tonight and action it will be as four teams battle to move into Friday night's championship game and a shot at a state tournament berth.

The top four seeded teams remain in contention after Dexter and Neelyville shot into the semifinals. The Tigers swarmed past Bloomfield, ending the Cats chances of making it four straight years in a row to appear in the state playoff, 56-38. Dexter followed with a big 80-66 win over Puxico.

Tonight's pairings will find top-seeded Richland facing Doniphan in the 7 p.m. opener, followed by the 8:30 p.m. nightcap that has Neelyville, second seeded, battling Dexter.

Roy Fields put in 20 points to pace the Tigers' win over the host for the team's 24th win.

Neelyville romped to a 9-6 first quarter lead and pulled out to a 25-15 half time advantage. The Wildcats were cold from the field and had trouble on the boards with the jumping jacks of the Tigers.

Glenn "Rawhide" Williamson ended his playing career for the Wildcats with a 14-point night.

Dexter pulled out to a 19-10 first quarter lead and ran with the pace setting Puxico Indians in beating them at their own game.

Jeff Cox fired in 23 points in leading the Bearcat assault that had nine men in the scoring column, four with double figures.

Puxico's Ron Anthony took high game honors with a 28-point night as the Indians ended their season after wheeling off nine straight victories at the end of its regular season campaign.

Upsets Fall on District Favorites

Class S district basketball favorite, Clarkton, bowed out of the regional tournament at Clarkton last night. It suffered a 71-68 setback at the hands of upstart Cooter.

Advance fell in another upset of class S favorites. Bell City moved into the semi-finals with a 73-57 win at Advance.

Four teams remain in the running with the final two nights of action set for Clarkton after first round and quarterfinal round play was split between Clarkton and Advance.

Howardville moved into the favorites. It crushed 22-game winner Southland 92-70 while Delta, last year's third place finisher, shot past Oak Ridge, 67-32.

Possibly the tournament will be decided tomorrow night as Howardville takes on Delta in the nightcap at 8:30 p.m. after Bell City locks horns with unseeded Cooter in the 7 p.m. opener.

The class S regional winner Saturday night will open state tournament action Monday at Cape Girardeau, where it faces the Lesterville regional champion.

At Clarkton

If there is to be a Cinderella team from Southeast Missouri the Cooter Wildcats will have to be it. It is the only unseeded team to advance into the semi-finals of area regional tournament play and with the recent credentials of the Cats. . . they just might have what it takes. They moved past the district's favorite after trimming Southland in a match Friday.

The win was only the ninth of the year for the Cats, who have been doormates to grid teams in the Bootheel until opening of the 1967-68 season.

"They just wanted the game more than we," remarked M. M. McMahon, coach of the Reindeer, who ended their season with a 21-6 record.

Cooter grabbed an early 21-12 first quarter lead and held on for the victory. It fired in 11 free throws in the final period and 21 for the game. Clarkton netted four charity shots. It committed six personals.

Clarkton had four men in double figures, with Bill Chism leading the group with 17 points. Danny Richardson added 16, Larry Jordan 15 and Steve DeLong 10.

Ben Flowers topped all scorers. He fired in 26 points to lead a five-man scoring attack of the Wildcats, which included four with double figures.

Howardville fired into the semi-finals with an impressive 92-70 win over Southland. It broke the game open in the second period after pulling to a 17-14 first period lead.

The win was the 15th of the season for Coach William C. Jackson's Hawks against six setbacks.

The four-inch height disadvantage was too much for the Rebels to overcome. The six foot-seven inch twins of the Hawks led the assault with Ruben Marsh topping with 24 points. Lewis Little dumped in 20.

At Advance

Delta's defense was too much for Oak Ridge. A 10 point middle game spread was disastrous. It trailed by four points, 13-9, at the end of the first period.

Joe Kight and Ronny Cook teamed to pace the Bobcats with 19 and 16 points.

Roger Thomas flipped in 11 points to lead Oak Ridge.

Bell City capitalized on Advance fouls to post its 73-57 upset victory.

The Cubs fired a 16-11 first quarter lead and held that slim margin throughout on their way into the semifinals and to an 11-13 record.

John Moroni ended his playing career for the Hornets with a 23-point night as they finished with a 15-12 record.

Majors Get Pay Hike

NEW YORK AP - Most major league baseball spring training camps are just on the verge of opening, but a lot of rookies have already received some good news. Three thousand dollars worth of good news.

One of the most important provisions of an agreement between club owners and the players Association that was announced Wednesday was the raising of the minimum major- league salary from $7,000 a year to $10,000.

In addition, the players won some other monetary concessions including an increase in meal allowances, spring training expenses and a lessening of the amount salaries may be reduced from one season to the next.

Top non-economic concessions included studies of possible alternatives to the reserve clause and of the length of the season, both to be completed next year.

The agreement was announced by John J. Gaherin, advisor to the owners' player relations committee. Negotiations for the owners were carried on by Joe Cronin, president of the American League; Warren Giles, president of the National League; Gaherin and other lawyers.

The agreement is for two years and was made effective as of last Jan. 1.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

On Tuesday, March 5, 1968, patrons of our school district will be asked to decide if the Sikeston Public Schools are to add a public school kindergarten to its existing school program. For a number of years, studies and research have proven the value of quality kindergarten programs throughout the United States. In Missouri, many of the districts who could afford kindergartens from local funds have been establishing them at a rapid pace during the past few years. In our district, the Board of Education has been aware of the value of a good kindergarten, but was unable to finance this program from local resources without reducing the quality of other existing programs in grades 1 through 12.

During the past session of the Missouri State Legislature, funds were made available by the state to assist in this effort. The state now will provide approximately 50 per cent of the cost of a kindergarten program. The Board of Education has asked the voters to approve a small 15 cent tax levy to supplement the funds which are available from state sources for the establishment of a kindergarten program in Sikeston.

Present plans are to use two buildings at Airport School which have large rooms ideal for kindergarten classrooms. Two kindergarten sessions will be held daily. The morning session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 11:30 a.m.; the afternoon session will begin at 12:30 p.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. No lunch will be served except milk and cookies at mid-session breaks each morning and afternoon. Transportation will be provided for all children. Certified teachers will be assigned to teach in kindergarten just as they must be certified in other areas of the total school program. Eight classrooms will be available for kindergarten purposes. This will provide every child in the district who is 5 years of age on or before September 15, 1968, with the opportunity to attend a public school kindergarten next fall. Kindergarten attendance is not mandatory; however, children who do not attend will be handicapped upon entering the first grade if they have no previous kindergarten training.

A public school kindergarten is definitely not a nursery school type of program. A well-planned program of readiness activities as recommended by the State Department of Education will be emphasized.

This readiness program will eliminate the necessity for first grade teachers who, at present, must spend weeks or even months of instructional time teaching readiness before initial first grade instruction can begin.

We hope that the patrons of the district will support this needed program on March 5.

Student health services have been improved during the past two years through resources provided under Title I Elementary-Secondary School Act of 1965. The health services in our schools are under the direction of Mrs. Rachelle Jacob. Staff members are: Mrs. Doris Entrekin, Mrs. Sue Grant, Mrs. Lola Maevers, Mrs. Carol Robertson, and Mrs. Marilyn Yancy.

In their January monthly reports, they reported that 1447 students had been seen. Twenty-three students were referred to doctors or optometrists for correction of vision, hearing, and for other medical care.

The staff made 74 home visits to discuss with parents ways of improving the health of school children. We believe that the staff is to be commended for their efforts for providing health services to the students in our schools.

The Guidance Department at the Senior High School has completed a follow-up study of the 1966 high school graduates. This survey shows that 20 per cent of the boys are now in the Armed Forces; 47 per cent of the boys and 46 per cent of the girls are enrolled in college. This percentage of students enrolling in college has been about the same for the past 5 years.

The survey noted that 3 and five tenths of the boys and 7 and one tenth of the girls were unemployed. Of the students who are employed, 3 and five tenths per cent of the boys and 24 and seven tenths per cent of the girls indicated that they were employed in clerical work; 14 and two tenths per cent of the boys and 11 and eight tenths per cent of the girls indicated that they were employed in semi-skilled or skilled work.

We have been improving vocational opportunities and are increasing the areas again next year so that we may better meet the needs of the non-college bound student so that each student may develop skills that will make him employable by the time he graduates from high school.

Good schools can be evaluated by the students' use of the school libraries. The Board of Education has provided excellent central libraries at the Middle School and the Senior High School. Mrs. Polly Hanks, librarian at the Middle School and Mr. Fred Huff, librarian at the Senior High School, reported that students checked out a total of 3670 books at the Middle School and 4122 at the Senior High School during the month of January. It is hoped that students continue the use of the fine library services provided for their use and that our circulation will continue to increase.

Widow Gets Home Back for Price Buyer Paid for It

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- A widow who lost her home in a tax sale is getting it back from the buyer for what he paid for it, $102.84.

Mrs. Verna Schiffmaker said she never received notice that her home was being sold for taxes.

The buyer, Milton Tigerman, agreed to deed it back to her. He said he has suffered unwarranted abuse since the purchase was publicized.

As a result, the Jackson County Court said Tuesday it will make certain in the future that every homeowner is contacted personally before his property is put up for tax sale.

Chaffee Mayor Criticizes 'Unequal' Tax Valuations

CHAFFEE -- The Chaffee city council tabled the 1968-69 budget and began a search for funds without raising taxes in the city.

The budget contained improvements for the town as submitted by aldermen from their departments. It would have resulted in a $3,000 to $4,000 deficit.

The Mayor cited what he called the unequal tax valuation in the county between Sikeston and the smaller towns in north Scott county. He said he would like to see a re-assessment of the county as he believes it would result in a fairer distribution of the tax load.

"It would possibly result in a lower county tax rate per hundred and we could justly raise the city's tax rate," he added.

The council suggested the Mayor meet with Illmo, Scott City and Oran Mayors to discuss the tax assessment of these cities and report the findings to the state tax commission for a possible reassessment in Scott county.

Barber Shop Robbed, Man Arrested

POPLAR BLUFF - Robert Lee Ray, 36, was arrested by Police 15 minutes after a man robbed the Dunn Hotel barber shop at 3:45 Monday.

Lewis Hillis, operator of the shop, went to the police station to report to Dispatcher Joe Garman that he had been held up. He gave a description of the suspect and Police started a check of Main Street after Hillis said the man fled east to that street.

Captain Paul Goad and Patrolman Bob Eastwood found Ray, who fitted the description given by Hillis. He was taken to the police station and admitted to the hold up and was identified by Hillis, police said.

The robber walked into the barber shop and told Hillis to give him his money. Hillis said at first he thought the man was kidding, but when the holdup man stated he would blast him and started shaking he put $15 and a $1.50 check in a money sack.

In cost of a kindergarten program. The Board of Education has asked the voters to approve a small 15 cent tax levy to supplement the funds which are available from state sources for the establishment of a kindergarten program in Sikeston.

Present plans are to use two buildings at Airport School which have large rooms ideal for kindergarten classrooms. Two kindergarten sessions will be held daily. The morning session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 11:30 a.m.; the afternoon session will begin at 12:30 p.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. No lunch will be served except milk and cookies at mid-session breaks each morning and afternoon. Transportation will be provided for all children. Certified teachers will be assigned to teach in kindergarten just as they must be certified in other areas of the total school program. Eight classrooms will be available for kindergarten purposes. This will provide every child in the district who is 5 years of age on or before September 15, 1968, with the opportunity to attend a public school kindergarten next fall. Kindergarten attendance is not mandatory; however, children who do not attend will be handicapped upon entering the first grade if they have no previous kindergarten training.

A public school kindergarten is definitely not a nursery school type of program. A well-planned program of readiness activities as recommended by the State Department of Education will be emphasized.

This readiness program will eliminate the necessity for first grade teachers who, at present, must spend weeks or even months of instructional time teaching readiness before initial first grade instruction can begin.

We hope that the patrons of the district will support this needed program on March 5.

Student health services have been improved during the past two years through resources provided under Title I Elementary-Secondary School Act of 1965. The health services in our schools are under the direction of Mrs. Rachelle Jacob. Staff members are: Mrs. Doris Entrekin, Mrs. Sue Grant, Mrs. Lola Maevers, Mrs. Carol Robertson, and Mrs. Marilyn Yancy.

In their January monthly reports, they reported that 1447 students had been seen. Twenty-three students were referred to doctors or optometrists for correction of vision, hearing, and for other medical care.

The staff made 74 home visits to discuss with parents ways of improving the health of school children. We believe that the staff is to be commended for their efforts for providing health services to the students in our schools.

The Guidance Department at the Senior High School has completed a follow-up study of the 1966 high school graduates. This survey shows that 20 per cent of the boys are now in the Armed Forces; 47 per cent of the boys and 46 per cent of the girls are enrolled in college. This percentage of students enrolling in college has been about the same for the past 5 years.

The survey noted that 3 and five tenths of the boys and 7 and one tenth of the girls were unemployed. Of the students who are employed, 3 and five tenths per cent of the boys and 24 and seven tenths per cent of the girls indicated that they were employed in clerical work; 14 and two tenths per cent of the boys and 11 and eight tenths per cent of the girls indicated that they were employed in semi-skilled or skilled work.

We have been improving vocational opportunities and are increasing the areas again next year so that we may better meet the needs of the non-college bound student so that each student may develop skills that will make him employable by the time he graduates from high school.

Good schools can be evaluated by the students' use of the school libraries. The Board of Education has provided excellent central libraries at the Middle School and the Senior High School. Mrs. Polly Hanks, librarian at the Middle School and Mr. Fred Huff, librarian at the Senior High School, reported that students checked out a total of 3670 books at the Middle School and 4122 at the Senior High School during the month of January. It is hoped that students continue the use of the fine library services provided for their use and that our circulation will continue to increase.

Chaffee Mayor Criticizes 'Unequal' Tax Valuations

CHAFFEE -- The Chaffee city council tabled the 1968-69 budget and began a search for funds without raising taxes in the city.

The budget contained improvements for the town as submitted by aldermen from their departments. It would have resulted in a $3,000 to $4,000 deficit.

The Mayor cited what he called the unequal tax valuation in the county between Sikeston and the smaller towns in north Scott county. He said he would like to see a re-assessment of the county as he believes it would result in a fairer distribution of the tax load.

"It would possibly result in a lower county tax rate per hundred and we could justly raise the city's tax rate," he added.

The council suggested the Mayor meet with Illmo, Scott City and Oran Mayors to discuss the tax assessment of these cities and report the findings to the state tax commission for a possible reassessment in Scott county.

Bluff Will Vote on Bridge Bond Issue

POPLAR BLUFF - A $151,000 bond issue proposal to build a new Vine Street bridge will be put to a public vote in the March 12 city primary election.

The bonds would be of the general obligation type and would require a slight increase in taxes.

The ancient and condemned existing bridge over Black River, which was closed last week as a hazard after warnings from engineers, would be replaced by a modern, concrete structure if city voters give the proposal the required two-thirds majority vote.

Acting at the insistence of businessmen and property owners, particularly those from the East Side, the City Council has ordered the bridge issue put to a separate vote on the primary election ballot. The issue originally was scheduled for a vote in the April 2 general city election, along with other civic improvement projects totaling $250,000.

FIRST AID KIT ESSENTIALS

With millions of home and car accidents a year, it is best, advises the American Medical Association, to keep a well-stocked first-aid kit readily available. Here's what the Association regards as the essentials for a first-aid kit:

. Individual 2x2 and 4x4-inch sterile dressings; one-inch wide by five-yard roller bandages; roll of adhesive tape; bath towels and bed sheets which can be cut up; triangular bandage (37-inch by 37-inch) for a sling, dressing, or as a covering.

. Safety pins, blunt-tip scissors, tweezers, measuring spoons, eye dropper, wooden tongue depressors; splints (about 12 to 14 inches long by 1/4-inch thick and 3 1/2 inches wide); wide strip of cloth or flexible rubber tubing 20 inches long to use as a tourniquet.

. A bar of mild soap; paper drinking cups; flashlight (with working batteries); syrup of ipecac to induce vomiting; essential personal prescriptions; first aid guidebook.

RESPONSIBLE YOUNG FOLK SEEK CONTRACEPTIVE ADVICE

On the challenging question of whether or not doctors should prescribe contraceptives for teen-agers, here's what Dr. Ronald J. Pion, obstetrician-gynecologist of the University of Washington School of Medicine, wrote recently:

"When a young girl, regardless of age, enters my office seeking advice about contraception, my reaction is not one of immediate suspicion that the patient is really seeking adventure and promiscuity; rather, I feel she is behaving in a responsible fashion.

"I am not in favor of dispensing contraceptive devices or pills to students of all ages who are not engaged in sexual activity. . .but I feel that all youngsters seeking professional help should be dealt with a positive and open manner.

"A couple having sexual relations should understand the consequences of their activities and should be helped to avoid an undesired and unwanted pregnancy."

Dr. Pion pointed out that many contraceptives are available without prescription and that these are less effective than the pills or intrauterine device in preventing unwanted pregnancies.

RETARDED CHILDREN OFTEN USEFUL ADULTS

A study of 109 men and women in their mid-fifties who were labeled mentally retarded as children shows that the vast majority of them have lived useful, quiet lives, supporting themselves and being "no special burden to their communities."

A team of mid-west researchers found that over 80 percent of the men and 77 percent of the women were employed most of the time, and some 65 per cent were entirely self-supporting. More than half of the employed had been working at the same jobs for at least five years. Almost all have been married and about half were living with their spouses.

The researchers observed that some of those labeled "retarded" had been mislabeled. That too little is known about how intelligence develops for such labels to be meaningful.

This pup has never had it so good! He lives in a home that's heated with natural gas. He spends most of his time on the floor because the furniture is off limits. But even the floor is warm in this home, because natural gas central heating provides uniform "fresh air" heat from floor to ceiling. Little people find this feature of natural gas heat particularly appealing because they live on the lower level, too.

Bluff Will Vote on Bridge Bond Issue

POPLAR BLUFF - A $151,000 bond issue proposal to build a new Vine Street bridge will be put to a public vote in the March 12 city primary election.

The bonds would be of the general obligation type and would require a slight increase in taxes.

The ancient and condemned existing bridge over Black River, which was closed last week as a hazard after warnings from engineers, would be replaced by a modern, concrete structure if city voters give the proposal the required two-thirds majority vote.

Acting at the insistence of businessmen and property owners, particularly those from the East Side, the City Council has ordered the bridge issue put to a separate vote on the primary election ballot. The issue originally was scheduled for a vote in the April 2 general city election, along with other civic improvement projects totaling $250,000.

ORVILLE L. FREEMAN, secretary of agriculture, and Stevan Dohanos, faculty member of Famous Artists Schools, Westpoint, Conn., admire a painting by Robert White of Painton, which is on display in Freeman's office in Washington, D. C. The painting, "My Dad," is one of 12 by American farmers and farm wives who are students or graduates of the school.

Painton Artist's Painting Exhibited in Washington

WASHINGTON -- An exhibit of paintings by American farmers and farm women has opened in the office of Orville L. Freeman, secretary of agriculture.

Entitled "The Farmer's Art," the exhibit features works by 12 amateur artists who live and work on farms and paint as a hobby. Presented in cooperation with Famous Artists School of Westport, Conn., it demonstrates the type of art being done by home-study students. The exhibit will remain in Secretary Freeman's offices for one month and then will tour the country. Artist Steven Dohanos, a founding faculty members of the school, served as cohost with Secretary Freeman at the opening. Dohanos is renowned for his easel, mural and magazine cover paintings of the American scene.

The artists and the titles of their works featured in exhibit included Robert White, Painton, Mo. -- "My Dad"

Robert F. White of Painton, Mo., who operates a 160-acre farm on which he grows soybeans, corn and wheat, says that "painting is very relaxing and through it I have learned to appreciate the beautiful country we live in. I have also made many new friends through art." White graduated from Famous Artists Schools in 1965, has won several awards and sold many of his paintings.

Gaud Makes Plea to Save AID Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - Foreign aid chief William S. Gaud has acknowledged his agency's excess property rehabilitation program has sometimes been improperly supervised but argued against junking the program.

The administrator of the Agency for International Development took personal blame for what he called improper supervision of the program in Belgium, Korea, Japan and Okinawa.

But Gaud told a House subcommittee Wednesday these programs were being overhauled, with changes designed to end overcharging for services and charging for services not performed.

The panel's questioning targeted an AID contract with a Belgium firm and the resignation of four AID employes in the midst of an agency probe of alleged "improper conduct" on their part.

Gaud said the resignations were not connected with AID's $250,000 claim against the Belgium contractor for "alleged overcharging."

In an action related to foreign aid, Senate - House conferees agreed Wednesday on a bill that would increase the Export-Import Bank's lending authority but bar it -- unless the President intercedes -- from transactions with Communist countries.

The Senate quickly approved the compromise measure.

That left it up to a final House vote, expected shortly, on the bill increasing the bank's outstanding loan ceiling from $9 billion to $13.5 billion.

Aircraft Shelter Plea Steps up

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon, citing hugh Egyptian plane losses in last June's Arab-Israeli war, is pressing Congress for permission to build new battle-resistant shelters for U. S. aircraft in Europe.

Congress has balked at the idea the last few years, partly on grounds construction of new fixed installations might keep the U. S. entrenched abroad or might be wasteful in event of pull-outs.

Harold Brown, secretary of the Air Force, made the latest bid for the specially developed shelter Wednesday, pointing out the Middle East war "dramatically demonstrated the vulnerability of exposed aircraft on the ground."

"Hundreds of aircraft, representing about half of the United Arab Republic's jet air force, were destroyed on the ground in the first three hours of attack-almost wholly by 20 and 30mm cannon fire," Brown said.

Brown told the Senate Armed Services Committee that East European countries already have started building protective installations for their planes.

"Our studies and war games show that, in a great many foreseeable situations, aircraft shelters would probably result in the savings of at least one aircraft for every four shelters," he stated.

"In some circumstances, they could save us as many as one aircraft for every shelter."

American fighter - bombers cost about $2 million each. The new Air Force FIllAs are priced at several million apiece.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara asked Congress in late January for $17.4 million to buy 60 shelters at European bases in the fiscal year beginning next July.

Over the next few years, he proposed erecting others to provide wartime protection for 515 aircraft in England, Germany and Spain. The program also would provide additional taxiways which would allow planes to be quickly dispersed in case of attack, plus specially protected fuel and communications facilities and alarm systems.

What the Pentagon has in mind are prefabricated metal and earth-mound shelters costing $130,000 to $160,000 each, depending on whether they are equipped with blast resistant steel doors.

You'll need several thicknesses of paper toweling, instead of just one thickness, when you are using the toweling for draining food that has been deep-fat fried. If brown paper is on hand, it may be used instead of the toweling for the draining.

Imaginary Flood Exercise Causes Mock Disaster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — From time to time awesome destruction has been visited on the St. Louis metropolitan area by imaginary nuclear attacks. Another disaster — this one a natural calamity — caused mock havoc last week.

A flood that is expected to happen once in 50 years occurred on Corps of Engineers maps and charts. It caused $38 million imaginary damage Wednesday.

The conclusion from the exercise was that had the flood really occurred, there would have been little damage to the section of the city from the Eads Bridge northward because the riverfront flood wall is complete in that area.

However, the area near the incomplete section south of Poplar Street would have been inundated.

Col. Edwin R. Decker, district engineer, said the exercise was valuable because many experienced flood fighters have retired and younger personnel gained the experience in directing activities connected with flood situations.

ORVILLE L. FREEMAN, secretary of agriculture, and Stevan Dohanos, faculty member of Famous Artists Schools, Westpoint, Conn., admire a painting by Robert White of Painton, which is on display in Freeman's office in Washington, D. C. The painting, "My Dad," is one of 12 by American farmers and farm wives who are students or graduates of the school.

Painton Artist's Painting Exhibited in Washington

WASHINGTON -- An exhibit of paintings by American farmers and farm women has opened in the office of Orville L. Freeman, secretary of agriculture.

Entitled "The Farmer's Art," the exhibit features works by 12 amateur artists who live and work on farms and paint as a hobby. Presented in cooperation with Famous Artists School of Westport, Conn., it demonstrates the type of art being done by home-study students. The exhibit will remain in Secretary Freeman's offices for one month and then will tour the country.

Artist Steven Dohanos, a founding faculty members of the school, served as cohost with Secretary Freeman at the opening. Dohanos is renowned for his easel, mural and magazine cover paintings of the American scene.

The artists and the titles of their works featured in exhibit included Robert White, Painton, Mo. -- "My Dad"

Robert F. White of Painton, Mo., who operates a 160-acre farm on which he grows soybeans, corn and wheat, says that "painting is very relaxing and through it I have learned to appreciate the beautiful country we live in. I have also made many new friends through art." White graduated from Famous Artists Schools in 1965, has won several awards and sold many of his paintings.

Gaud Makes Plea to Save AID Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - Foreign aid chief William S. Gaud has acknowledged his agency's excess property rehabilitation program has sometimes been improperly supervised but argued against junking the program.

The administrator of the Agency for International Development took personal blame for what he called improper supervision of the program in Belgium, Korea, Japan and Okinawa.

But Gaud told a House subcommittee Wednesday these programs were being overhauled, with changes designed to end overcharging for services and charging for services not performed.

The panel's questioning targeted an AID contract with a Belgium firm and the resignation of four AID employes in the midst of an agency probe of alleged "improper conduct" on their part.

Gaud said the resignations were not connected with AID's $250,000 claim against the Belgium contractor for "alleged overcharging."

In an action related to foreign aid, Senate - House conferees agreed Wednesday on a bill that would increase the Export-Import Bank's lending authority but bar it -- unless the President intercedes -- from transactions with Communist countries.

The Senate quickly approved the compromise measure.

That left it up to a final House vote, expected shortly, on the bill increasing the bank's outstanding loan ceiling from $9 billion to $13.5 billion.

Aircraft Shelter Plea Steps up

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon, citing hugh Egyptian plane losses in last June's Arab-Israeli war, is pressing Congress for permission to build new battle-resistant shelters for U. S. aircraft in Europe.

Congress has balked at the idea the last few years, partly on grounds construction of new fixed installations might keep the U. S. entrenched abroad or might be wasteful in event of pull-outs.

Harold Brown, secretary of the Air Force, made the latest bid for the specially developed shelter Wednesday, pointing out the Middle East war "dramatically demonstrated the vulnerability of exposed aircraft on the ground."

"Hundreds of aircraft, representing about half of the United Arab Republic's jet air force, were destroyed on the ground in the first three hours of attack-almost wholly by 20 and 30mm cannon fire," Brown said.

Brown told the Senate Armed Services Committee that East European countries already have started building protective installations for their planes.

"Our studies and war games show that, in a great many foreseeable situations, aircraft shelters would probably result in the savings of at least one aircraft for every four shelters," he stated.

"In some circumstances, they could save us as many as one aircraft for every shelter."

American fighter - bombers cost about $2 million each. The new Air Force FIllAs are priced at several million apiece.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara asked Congress in late January for $17.4 million to buy 60 shelters at European bases in the fiscal year beginning next July.

Over the next few years, he proposed erecting others to provide wartime protection for 515 aircraft in England, Germany and Spain. The program also would provide additional taxiways which would allow planes to be quickly dispersed in case of attack, plus specially protected fuel and communications facilities and alarm systems.

What the Pentagon has in mind are prefabricated metal and earth-mound shelters costing $130,000 to $160,000 each, depending on whether they are equipped with blast resistant steel doors.

You'll need several thicknesses of paper toweling, instead of just one thickness, when you are using the toweling for draining food that has been deep-fat fried. If brown paper is on hand, it may be used instead of the toweling for the draining.

Churchmen Deny Schism Report

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a jolting judgment— that there's a grave danger of schism in the American Catholic Church. It came from a prominent European theologian. But it scarcely caused a ripple in this country's Church circles.

Reaction, in short, kept its "cool."

"If he means schism in the sense of its historical dimensions, that is, cutting right across the American Church, then it's not in the cards," commented Bishop John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J.

"Overdrawn," said the Rev. John Sheering, of New York, editor of the Catholic World. "There's going to be trouble ahead, but I don't see any signs of schism."

The ominous assessment came from the Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx, an influential Dutch theologian of the University of Nijmegen, following a two-month lecture tour of church institutions in the United States.

"There's an awful misunderstanding between the U.S. bishops and the ordinary faithful," he said in the Dutch national Catholic daily, De Tijd, on his return home. He called the American situation alarming and saw a danger of schism, saying:

"The bishops, with few exceptions, destroy all spontaneous life. They maintain absolute authority and hundreds of priests are sacked or are transferred against their will. Many priests dare not speak freely because they know they will be punished.

"In the next three years, probably 10,000 priests will leave their ministry in the United States. That is, one out of six priests will resign. The discontent among American priests and even hatred for bishops is indescribable."

Commented the Jesuit-edited Catholic weekly, America: "We suggest that Father Schillebeeckx was hotly pursued here in America by that terribly vocal minority of unhappy priests and laymen who pour their troubles into every new and available ear."

The Rev. Daniel Lyons, president of Twin Circle-The National Catholic Press, said, "We doubt very much if any U.S. priests took the sensational remarks of Father Schillebeeckx seriously."

An unusual aspect of Father Schillebeeckx's estimate of U.S. church conditions was that it came from within the fold of Dutch Catholicism in which new trends and activities have occasionally been questioned by the Vatican.

Father Schillebeeckx himself was theological overseer of the controversial Dutch Catechism, whose English edition in this country was denied ecclesiastical approval after the Vatican began an investigation and arranged for some revisions.

Concerning various articles implying a rebellious attitude in the Dutch Church, Father Schillebeeckx said, 'In two years, in the world of Church affairs, people will be speaking more about the United States than about the Netherlands."

A Dominican, Father Schillebeeckx, 53, became widely known during the Vatican Council of 1962-65 as the chief theological adviser to Dutch bishops and his books are heavy sellers in this country.

His recent tour, his third visit here, drew audiences in the thousands at Catholic campuses across the East and Midwest. His lectures defended variety in theological interpretation and emphasized the links between the sacred and secular.

Silent Film Star Regains Spotlight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "For 34 years I have been a private person," said onetime film star Colleen Moore. "All of a sudden I'm a public person again."

What changed her status was authorship of an autobiography, "Silent Star." Said she: "I found out that you don't just write books nowadays; you have to sell them as well. My editor at Doubleday, Ken McCormick, said, 'Of course, you'll make a tour for the book.' I said, 'Of course.' I didn't know he was planning a tour of 50 cities!"

Her complaint was mild, because she was obviously enjoying the position of being a public person once more. She was especially pleased with the reception in Hollywood, where she worked in films from 1917 to 1934. Mervyn Leroy, who got his first break as a director with Colleen's "Oh Kay" in 1928, tossed her a reception, and many of her old chums turned out: Harold Lloyd, Buddy Rogers, King Vidor, George Cukor, Gene Raymond, Adela Rogers St. John, etc.

On the following day, Miss Moore had just returned to her hotel suite from a television interview, and Vidor, who directed her in "The Sky Pilot," was giving her advice: "Make sure they light you from an angle, not directly from above; that high-noon effect is too harsh."

Actually, the years have dealt kindly with the star who epitomized the flapper era with her bobbed hair, short skirts and bouncy manner. Since she was the symbol of that colorful time in Hollywood history, interviewers often ask her if the film town was as wild as some historians claim.

"Not at all," she replies. "I suppose there may have been some wild parties, but I never went to one. Most of us worked too hard to get into any kind of trouble."

Miss Moore labored in films almost steadily from the time she came to Hollywood for a D. W. Griffith contract arranged by her uncle, Chicago newspaper editor Walter Howey. She was only 15, but girls were in demand for movie roles. She explains why in her book: The crude klieg-lighting demanded youth. "Only the youngest, clearest, most wrinkle-free skins could stand up to the scrutiny of closeups under their harsh glare," she says.

Her career ended in 1934 when she married Homer Hargrave, Chicago stockbroker, and retired to be a private person and mother of his two children. She considers her last picture to have been her best; it was "The Power and the Glory," costarring Spencer Tracy.

THE MAIL MUST GO THROUGH

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — No one can say postal employes did not go out of their way to deliver a letter written by an El Paso man to a friend who was spending his vacation at the home of his parents in Iowa. Not knowing the name or address of the friend's parents he addressed the letter: "H. Fred Whitt of El Paso, who is visiting his parents out by the highway kind of close to the old wooden bridge out in Melbourne, Iowa."

Believe it or not, Whitt received the letter.

Nixon Widens Lead Over GOP Contenders

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - More than half of the rank-and-file Republicans surveyed recently by the Gallup Poll favor former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the party's 1968 presidential candidate.

The poll said Wednesday that Nixon, who collected 51 per cent of the votes in the survey, continued to widen his lead in a field of eight top Republicans.

Nixon now tops New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his closest rival in the survey, by 26 percentage points, according to the February poll. January figures showed Nixon with a 15-point edge over Rockefeller.

Running third is California Gov. Ronald Reagan with eight percentage points.

Michigan Gov. George Romney, besides Nixon the only other declared GOP presidential candidate, was fourth with 7 per cent of the vote and appeared to be losing ground, the poll added. He has lost 5 per cent of the votes since last January and 17 per cent since last September in similar Gallup polls.

Nixon also has registered gains among independent voters or persons who do not align themselves with either of the two major parties. Rockefeller had drawn even with Nixon among independents in January, but the former vice president now leads the governor by 34 to 26.

When the voters were asked which one of eight Republicans they would like to see nominated as the GOP candidate for president in 1968, 51 per cent said Nixon; Rockefeller 25 per cent; Reagan 8; Romney 7; Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, 3; Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Mayor John Lindsay of New York City, each 2 per cent, and retired Army Gen. James M. Gavin, 1. Six per cent expressed no preference.

SMOKING STUDY

TORONTO (AP) — Two Toronto doctors are completing the first year's operation of a "smoking withdrawal center" to find out why people smoke, to help heavy smokers break the habit and to study the effect of smoking on human health.

Financed by federal health grants, the experimental program has been carried out among 200 civic employees, all previous smokers of more than 30 cigarettes a day, by Dr. G. W. O. Moss, deputy medical officer of health for Toronto, and Dr. Norman C. Delaurue, chest surgeon and assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto.

The ultimate aim of the program, says Dr. Moss, is not the finding of a cure for lung cancer but rather a fast, simple way to detect it in its early stages.

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- It was announced today by Thom Reeves, executive director of the Bollinger, Cape and Perry County Human Resources Corporation, that the annual Community Action recognition dinner has been rescheduled from March 7 to March 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The change was made as the result of a conflict in the schedule of U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long, the speaker.

Senator Long has been asked to represent the United States on a mission to Brazil during the first week of March.

The dinner will be held at the Flaming Pit.

The program will include presentation of awards to volunteers in the community action program and presentation of the Head Start child of the year. Senator Long will be introduced by State Sen. Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeau.

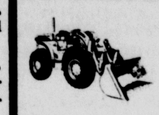

OVERLY HELPFUL

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A waitress who tried to be helpful cost Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevens some $320. Mrs. Stevens absentmindedly walked off and left a purse with $320 and some other items in the restaurant. After she left, a waitress, seeing the purse, rushed with it to the front of the cafe and saw a woman getting into her car to drive away. She asked her if the purse was hers and she said yes and expressed thanks to the waitress for bringing the purse and drove off.

About that time Mrs. Stevens realized that she had left the purse at the restaurant and returned, only to find that the purse had been given to another woman.

Churchmen Deny Schism Report

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a jolting judgment— that there's a grave danger of schism in the American Catholic Church. It came from a prominent European theologian. But it scarcely caused a ripple in this country's Church circles.

Reaction, in short, kept its "cool."

"If he means schism in the sense of its historical dimensions, that is, cutting right across the American Church, then it's not in the cards," commented Bishop John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J.

"Overdrawn," said the Rev. John Sheering, of New York, editor of the Catholic World. "There's going to be trouble ahead, but I don't see any signs of schism."

The ominous assessment came from the Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx, an influential Dutch theologian of the University of Nijmegen, following a two-month lecture tour of church institutions in the United States.

"There's an awful misunderstanding between the U.S. bishops and the ordinary faithful," he said in the Dutch national Catholic daily, De Tijd, on his return home. He called the American situation alarming and saw a danger of schism, saying:

"The bishops, with few exceptions, destroy all spontaneous life. They maintain absolute authority and hundreds of priests are sacked or are transferred against their will. Many priests dare not speak freely because they know they will be punished.

"In the next three years, probably 10,000 priests will leave their ministry in the United States. That is, one out of six priests will resign. The discontent among American priests and even hatred for bishops is indescribable."

Commented the Jesuit-edited Catholic weekly, America: "We suggest that Father Schillebeeckx was hotly pursued here in America by that terribly vocal minority of unhappy priests and laymen who pour their troubles into every new and available ear."

The Rev. Daniel Lyons, president of Twin Circle-The National Catholic Press, said, "We doubt very much if any U.S. priests took the sensational remarks of Father Schillebeeckx seriously."

An unusual aspect of Father Schillebeeckx's estimate of U.S. church conditions was that it came from within the fold of Dutch Catholicism in which new trends and activities have occasionally been questioned by the Vatican.

Father Schillebeeckx himself was theological overseer of the controversial Dutch Catechism, whose English edition in this country was denied ecclesiastical approval after the Vatican began an investigation and arranged for some revisions.

Concerning various articles implying a rebellious attitude in the Dutch Church, Father Schillebeeckx said, "In two years, in the world of Church affairs, people will be speaking more about the United States than about the Netherlands."

A Dominican, Father Schillebeeckx, 53, became widely known during the Vatican Council of 1962-65 as the chief theological adviser to Dutch bishops and his books are heavy sellers in this country.

His recent tour, his third visit here, drew audiences in the thousands at Catholic campuses across the East and Midwest. His lectures defended variety in theological interpretation and emphasized the links between the sacred and secular.

Silent Film Star Regains Spotlight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "For 34 years I have been a private person," said onetime film star Colleen Moore. "All of a sudden I'm a public person again."

What changed her status was authorship of an autobiography, "Silent Star." Said she: "I found out that you don't just write books nowadays; you have to sell them as well. My editor at Doubleday, Ken McCormick, said, 'Of course, you'll make a tour for the book.' I said, 'Of course.' I didn't know he was planning a tour of 50 cities!"

Her complaint was mild, because she was obviously enjoying the position of being a public person once more. She was especially pleased with the reception in Hollywood, where she worked in films from 1917 to 1934. Mervyn Leroy, who got his first break as a director with Colleen's "Oh Kay" in 1928, tossed her a reception, and many of her old chums turned out: Harold Lloyd, Buddy Rogers, King Vidor, George Cukor, Gene Raymond, Adela Rogers St. John, etc.

On the following day, Miss Moore had just returned to her hotel suite from a television interview, and Vidor, who directed her in "The Sky Pilot," was giving her advice: "Make sure they light you from an angle, not directly from above; that high-noon effect is too harsh."

Actually, the years have dealt kindly with the star who epitomized the flapper era with her bobbed hair, short skirts and bouncy manner. Since she was the symbol of that colorful time in Hollywood history, interviewers often ask her if the film town was as wild as some historians claim.

"Not at all," she replies. "I suppose there may have been some wild parties, but I never went to one. Most of us worked too hard to get into any kind of trouble."

Miss Moore labored in films almost steadily from the time she came to Hollywood for a D. W. Griffith contract arranged by her uncle, Chicago newspaper editor Walter Howey. She was only 15, but girls were in demand for movie roles. She explains why in her book: The crude klieg-lighting demanded youth. "Only the youngest, clearest, most wrinkle-free skins could stand up to the scrutiny of closeups under their harsh glare," she says.

Her career ended in 1934 when she married Homer Hargrave, Chicago stockbroker, and retired to be a private person and mother of his two children. She considers her last picture to have been her best; it was "The Power and the Glory," costarring Spencer Tracy.

THE MAIL MUST GO THROUGH

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — No one can say postal employes did not go out of their way to deliver a letter written by an El Paso man to a friend who was spending his vacation at the home of his parents in Iowa. Not knowing the name or address of the friend's parents he addressed the letter: "H. Fred Whitt of El Paso, who is visiting his parents out by the highway kind of close to the old wooden bridge out in Melbourne, Iowa."

Believe it or not, Whitt received the letter.

Nixon Widens Lead Over GOP Contenders

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - More than half of the rank-and-file Republicans surveyed recently by the Gallup Poll favor former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the party's 1968 presidential candidate.

The poll said Wednesday that Nixon, who collected 51 per cent of the votes in the survey, continued to widen his lead in a field of eight top Republicans.

Nixon now tops New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his closest rival in the survey, by 26 percentage points, according to the February poll. January figures showed Nixon with a 15-point edge over Rockefeller.

Running third is California Gov. Ronald Reagan with eight percentage points.

Michigan Gov. George Romney, besides Nixon the only other declared GOP presidential candidate, was fourth with 7 per cent of the vote and appeared to be losing ground, the poll added. He has lost 5 per cent of the votes since last January and 17 per cent since last September in similar Gallup polls.

Nixon also has registered gains among independent voters or persons who do not align themselves with either of the two major parties. Rockefeller had drawn even with Nixon among independents in January, but the former vice president now leads the governor by 34 to 26.

When the voters were asked which one of eight Republicans they would like to see nominated as the GOP candidate for president in 1968, 51 per cent said Nixon; Rockefeller 25 per cent; Reagan 8; Romney 7; Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, 3; Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Mayor John Lindsay of New York City, each 2 per cent, and retired Army Gen. James M. Gavin, 1. Six per cent expressed no preference.

SMOKING STUDY

TORONTO (AP) — Two Toronto doctors are completing the first year's operation of a "smoking withdrawal center" to find out why people smoke, to help heavy smokers break the habit and to study the effect of smoking on human health.

Financed by federal health grants, the experimental program has been carried out among 200 civic employees, all previous smokers of more than 30 cigarettes a day, by Dr. G. W. O. Moss, deputy medical officer of health for Toronto, and Dr. Norman C. Delaurue, chest surgeon and assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto.

The ultimate aim of the program, says Dr. Moss, is not the finding of a cure for lung cancer but rather a fast, simple way to detect it in its early stages.

Long Will Speak At Cape Girardeau

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- It was announced today by Thom Reeves, executive director of the Bollinger, Cape and Perry County Human Resources Corporation, that the annual Community Action recognition dinner has been rescheduled from March 7 to March 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The change was made as the result of a conflict in the schedule of U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long, the speaker.

Senator Long has been asked to represent the United States on a mission to Brazil during the first week of March.

The dinner will be held at the Flaming Pit.

The program will include presentation of awards to volunteers in the community action program and presentation of the Head Start child of the year. Senator Long will be introduced by State Sen. Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeau.

OVERLY HELPFUL

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A waitress who tried to be helpful cost Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevens some $320. Mrs. Stevens absentmindedly walked off and left a purse with $320 and some other items in the restaurant. After she left, a waitress, seeing the purse, rushed with it to the front of the cafe and saw a woman getting into her car to drive away. She asked her if the purse was hers and she said yes and expressed thanks to the waitress for bringing the purse and drove off.

About that time Mrs. Stevens realized that she had left the purse at the restaurant and returned, only to find that the purse had been given to another woman.

Movies Draw on the 'Comics'

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

The movie industry, with an unquenchable thirst for source material, has turned its lenses once again to the popular comic strip.

Every movie fan worth his price of admission and over 30 surely recalls when Blondie and Dagwood (remember Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake?) brought the Bumstead family to the big screen in a series of films running through the late 1940s.

And the old RKO-Radio features, "Dick Tracy Meets Gruesome," "Dick Tracy Versus Cueball," and others. How about "Superman and the Mole Man," 1951? Then, of course, there is the old Batman serials, which Columbia put together for a three-hour-plus camp comeback a couple of years ago. And the musical "Li'l Abner" of 1959.

The latest entries (which seem to emphasize the strip more than the comic) go by the names "Barbarella," for release next spring, "Diabolik" and "Modesty Blaise," were bred in Europe instead of Dogpatch or Gotham City, but the source still is the comic strip.

"Barbarella," which its Paramount producers tag an "adult illustrated feature," stars Jane Fonda as Our Heroine, romping scantily clad (if clad at all) through outer space as a futuristic female James Bond in the year 40,000, vanquishing evil robots and monsters and rewarding her male helpers by teaching them the art of love Earth style. Roger Vadim, her husband and director of the fantasy, describes it as an erotic Alice in Wonderland. It is based on a French comic strip by Jean-Claude Forest, made popular by the so-called beat generation of Europe, which picked it up as a satire on contemporary society.

John Phillip Law, known to American movie audiences as the young lover in "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming," plays Barbarella's guardian angel, Pyger—complete with eight-foot wings.

Law is the hero of another comic strip-based film, "Diabolik," in which he is the death-defying black-caped thief who helps the weak and defenseless with the aid of his trusty and sexy companion, Marisa Mell.

Again, the film version of the originally Italian comic strip stresses superhero and sex. In a scene in Diabolik's futuristic underground bachelor pad our hero and his romantic companion . . . well, romance . . . under a blanket of $10,000 bills.

Last year's "Modesty Blaise," also based on an "adult" comic strip, this one British, starred Monica Vitti as a fantastic female superspy with op art color touches by director Joseph Losey.

The CBS Theatrical Film Division has in the works a feature-length animated film, "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," based on the "Peanuts" comic strip, which already has served as source material for an off-Broadway stage show.

The comic strip, of course, is almost a natural for the movie medium, as anyone who has ever flipped the pages of a comic strip in book form well knows. Movies were in fact conceived as a series of related pictures, of which the cartoon strip is the simplest form. The original movieolas were simply a succession of drawings or photographs in story form.

A comic strip, very often, has film visuals virtually set by its panel treatment, and often implies camera angles and lighting.

The current film versions, then, are not a new trend though nuder and reflect again, as they did during the World War II period, the needs of a troubled society seeking the far-out, the pure escapism of the comic strip hero world in which we all don the mental cape of fantasy.

JOHN PHILLIP LAW plays Pyger in the movie version of the comic strip, "Barbarella."

A PANEL from "Barbarella," a French comic strip, which was printed with English in the balloons in "Evergreen" magazine and in a book published in the United States.

FASHION FIRST was the appearance of Yugoslav creations at a London style show. Here, model wears a sheepskin jacket and hat with leather miniskirt.

HELSINKI HIKER is Finland's president, Urho Kekkonen, 67, who walks for two hours each day, weather permitting.

SHAKY PERCH for candelabra, but Cairo belly-dancer Elizabeth May reportedly is one of few who can perform feat.

Congress established our first branch mint at New Orleans by an act of March 3, 1835. It was closed in 1909.

UNION PRESIDENT CRITICIZES GOOF-OFFS

HONOLULU (AP)—The president of the Teamsters Union in Hawaii, Arthur Rutledge, has publicly chastised certain members of his union whom he calls "goof-offs."

Speaking in a union newspaper, Rutledge said there are too kinds of goof-offs. They are:

"The worker who takes a day off the job whenever the notion strikes him, for no properly excusable reason.

"And the worker who abuses the state unemployment compensation program."

Rutledge said the goof-offs make it difficult for the union to settle legitimate grievances among other workers.

Movies Draw on the 'Comics'

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

The movie industry, with an unquenchable thirst for source material, has turned its lenses once again to the popular comic strip.

Every movie fan worth his price of admission and over 30 surely recalls when Blondie and Dagwood (remember Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake?) brought the Bumstead family to the big screen in a series of films running through the late 1940s.

And the old RKO-Radio features, "Dick Tracy Meets Gruesome," "Dick Tracy Versus Cueball," and others. How about "Superman and the Mole Man," 1951? Then, of course, there is the old Batman serials, which Columbia put together for a three-hour-plus camp comeback a couple of years ago. And the musical "Li'l Abner" of 1959.

The latest entries (which seem to emphasize the strip more than the comic) go by the names "Barbarella," for release next spring, "Diabolik" and "Modesty Blaise," were bred in Europe instead of Dogpatch or Gotham City, but the source still is the comic strip.

"Barbarella," which its Paramount producers tag an "adult illustrated feature," stars Jane Fonda as Our Heroine, romping scantily clad (if clad at all) through outer space as a futuristic female James Bond in the year 40,000, vanquishing evil robots and monsters and rewarding her male helpers by teaching them the art of love Earth style. Roger Vadim, her husband and director of the fantasy, describes it as an erotic Alice in Wonderland. It is based on a French comic strip by Jean-Claude Forest, made popular by the so-called beat generation of Europe, which picked it up as a satire on contemporary society.

John Phillip Law, known to American movie audiences as the young lover in "The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming," plays Barbarella's guardian angel, Pyger—complete with eight-foot wings.

Law is the hero of another comic strip-based film, "Diabolik," in which he is the death-defying black-caped thief who helps the weak and defenseless with the aid of his trusty and sexy companion, Marisa Mell.

Again, the film version of the originally Italian comic strip stresses superhero and sex. In a scene in Diabolik's futuristic underground bachelor pad our hero and his romantic companion . . . well, romance . . . under a blanket of $10,000 bills.

Last year's "Modesty Blaise," also based on an "adult" comic strip, this one British, starred Monica Vitti as a fantastic female superspy with op art color touches by director Joseph Losey.

The CBS Theatrical Film Division has in the works a feature-length animated film, "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," based on the "Peanuts" comic strip, which already has served as source material for an off-Broadway stage show.

The comic strip, of course, is almost a natural for the movie medium, as anyone who has ever flipped the pages of a comic strip in book form well knows. Movies were in fact conceived as a series of related pictures, of which the cartoon strip is the simplest form. The original movieolas were simply a succession of drawings or photographs in story form.

A comic strip, very often, has film visuals virtually set by its panel treatment, and often implies camera angles and lighting.

The current film versions, then, are not a new trend—though nuder and reflect again, as they did during the World War II period, the needs of a troubled society seeking the far-out, the pure escapism of the comic strip hero world in which we all don the mental cape of fantasy.

JOHN PHILLIP LAW plays Pyger in the movie version of the comic strip, "Barbarella."

A PANEL from "Barbarella," a French comic strip, which was printed with English in the balloons in "Evergreen" magazine and in a book published in the United States.

FASHION FIRST was the appearance of Yugoslav creations at a London style show. Here, model wears a sheepskin jacket and hat with leather miniskirt.

HELSINKI HIKER is Finland's president, Urho Kekkonen, 67, who walks for two hours each day, weather permitting.

SHAKY PERCH for candelabra, but Cairo belly-dancer Elizabeth May reportedly is one of few who can perform feat.

Congress established our first branch mint at New Orleans by an act of March 3, 1835. It was closed in 1909.

UNION PRESIDENT CRITICIZES GOOF-OFFS

HONOLULU (AP)—The president of the Teamsters Union in Hawaii, Arthur Rutledge, has publicly chastised certain members of his union whom he calls "goof-offs."

Speaking in a union newspaper, Rutledge said there are too kinds of goof-offs. They are:

"The worker who takes a day off the job whenever the notion strikes him, for no properly excusable reason.

"And the worker who abuses the state unemployment compensation program."

Rutledge said the goof-offs make it difficult for the union to settle legitimate grievances among other workers.

Ann Landers

Shoplifting Poor Way for Girl to Amuse Herself

Dear Ann Landers: My dearest friend is refined, a good student and she goes to church. She is attractive and has a great personality. Her parents are wonderful people. They are not millionaires but she could have just about anything she asked for.

So what is wrong? She is a thief. I refuse to go into a store with her any more because if she gets caught stealing I don't want to be around. I have asked her a half dozen times why she steals and her answer is always the same: "For kicks." At first it was a candy bar or a package of bobby pins; now she has graduated to jewelry and handbags. She says it's like a game -- the object being to outsmart somebody.

My friend thinks you are neat and maybe she will listen to you. Say something please. --- FRIGHTENED

Dear Frightened: Shoplifting, whether it's for kicks, profit or kleptomania, is a problem which has reached staggering proportions and the storekeepers have decided to do something about it.

A variety of devices to catch thieves have been installed in retail stores all over the country --hidden TV cameras, two-way mirrors and electronic buzzers, to name a few. Recently a group of California women who call themselves "Housewives Alert" banded together to combat higher prices resulting from shoplifting losses. They keep their eyes open and report shoplifters to the manager.

If your friend is a compulsive thief she should get professional help. If she is just playing games she should consider what life will be like when she loses. The shame and heartache will make her wish she had found a better way to amuse herself.

Dear Ann Landers: My children enjoy a certain TV program which I always felt was in poor taste. On this program a girl interviews three eligible bachelors who are hidden from her sight. She selects her date on the basis of the answers he gives from behind the screen.

Last week a girl chose Number Three "because he is always putting me in bed." I am not 90 years old nor am I a prude, but I was appalled at that statement. The studio audience laughed and the way the girl looked at her date was sickening.

My son said, "Wow!" My teenage daughter looked bewildered. What is this world coming to when such stuff is allowed to invade our homes? -- MRS. R. J. G.

Dear Mrs.: Since I did not see the program I am unable to comment on it. If your report is accurate, I, too, am appalled.

The best way to fight trash on TV is with your pencil, pen or typewriter. Write a letter to the network and the sponsor. Tell them you will not look at their programs or buy their products unless they clean up the shows. If people don't want garbage dumped into their living rooms they should say no.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a career girl, 27, and have lived in another state since I was 20. My mother confided that Dad (who is a physican) wants a divorce and she is willing to give it to him. Dad has asked for his freedom so he can marry the nurse who works in his office.

My parents never had a beautiful marriage but they managed to stay together for 30 years. My problem is as follows: I have set my wedding date for May. My future in-laws are very conservative people and they would be horrified by this. Do I have the right to ask my parents to hold off on the divorce until after my wedding?---DISTRAUGHT

Dear Dis: You certainly do. If your parents stood each other for 30 years they can stand each other for another three months.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, wrote to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self -addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

If You Were The Judge

Couple Married Even If Certificate Strays

Rev. Smyth had a memory like a steel trap that had been sprung. In fact, it was probably only the result of sheer repetition that enabled him to find his way to the pulpit every Sunday morning.

As a consequence, after marring Jethro and Clara he completely forgot to file their marriage certificate as required by law. The omission didn't come to light until years later when Jethro died. Jethro's relatives uncovered the omission and insisted, in court, that Jethro's estate belonged to them and not to Clara who claimed to be his widow.

"Since the minister failed to comply with the law," they pointed out, "Jethro and Clara weren't legally married and Clara isn't Jethro's widow."

"You can't make me suffer because we were married by an absentminded minister," answered Clara. "If our four children aren't sufficient proof that we were married, I don't know what is."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider Clara's marriage valid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES. The judge held that when a man and a woman are married by a minister, duly authorized to perform the ceremony, the marriage is valid. The fact that a minister forgets to file the marriage certificate does not affect its validity.

(Based upon a 1943 Pennsylvania Superior Court Decision)

Hitch Delays SST Completion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Technical problems reportedly will keep the nation's proposed supersonic transport plane grounded until at least 1972.

Government sources said Wednesday that recent design changes authorized to improve the performance of the 1,800-mile-an-hour SST have delayed its development by about a year.

Thoe Boeing Co. of Seattle Wash., refused comment on reports about the plane it is developing with the help of federal subsidies. The White House referred questions to the Federal Aviation Administration, which in turn referred them to the White House.

There have been calls on Capitol Hill for cutbacks in spending on the SST project, especially in view of mounting Vietnam war costs and federal budget deficits. Sources said the delay could sharply reduce the $223 million the administration has earmarked for the SST in the next fiscal year.

BOWLER, 12, GETS 300

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A claim for youngest 300 bowler was made here in mid-January when Dale Mesenbrink, 12, got 12 straight strikes on the Echo lanes.

The 5-foot-4 youngster had been averaging 136. However, since Christmas, when his dad gave him a new bowling ball, he has been averaging 170.

Ann Landers

Shoplifting Poor Way for Girl to Amuse Herself

Dear Ann Landers: My dearest friend is refined, a good student and she goes to church. She is attractive and has a great personality. Her parents are wonderful people. They are not millionaires but she could have just about anything she asked for.

So what is wrong? She is a thief. I refuse to go into a store with her any more because if she gets caught stealing I don't want to be around. I have asked her a half dozen times why she steals and her answer is always the same: "For kicks." At first it was a candy bar or a package of bobby pins; now she has graduated to jewelry and handbags. She says it's like a game -- the object being to outsmart somebody.

My friend thinks you are neat and maybe she will listen to you. Say something please. --- FRIGHTENED

Dear Frightened: Shoplifting, whether it's for kicks, profit or kleptomania, is a problem which has reached staggering proportions and the storekeepers have decided to do something about it.

A variety of devices to catch thieves have been installed in retail stores all over the country ---hidden TV cameras, two-way mirrors and electronic buzzers, to name a few. Recently a group of California women who call themselves "Housewives Alert" banded together to combat higher prices resulting from shoplifting losses. They keep their eyes open and report shoplifters to the manager.

If your friend is a compulsive thief she should get professional help. If she is just playing games she should consider what life will be like when she loses. The shame and heartache will make her wish she had found a better way to amuse herself.

Dear Ann Landers: My children enjoy a certain TV program which I always felt was in poor taste. On this program a girl interviews three eligible bachelors who are hidden from her sight. She selects her date on the basis of the answers he gives from behind the screen.

Last week a girl chose Number Three "because he is always putting me in bed." I am not 90 years old nor am I a prude, but I was appalled at that statement. The studio audience laughed and the way the girl looked at her date was sickening.

My son said, "Wow!" My teenage daughter looked bewildered. What is this world coming to when such stuff is allowed to invade our homes? --- MRS. R.J.G.

Dear Mrs.: Since I did not see the program I am unable to comment on it. If your report is accurate, I, too, am appalled.

The best way to fight trash on TV is with your pencil, pen or typewriter. Write a letter to the network and the sponsor. Tell them you will not look at their programs or buy their products unless they clean up the shows. If people don't want garbage dumped into their living rooms they should say no.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a career girl, 27, and have lived in another state since I was 20. My mother confided that Dad (who is a physican) wants a divorce and she is willing to give it to him. Dad has asked for his freedom so he can marry the nurse who works in his office.

My parents never had a beautiful marriage but they managed to stay together for 30 years. My problem is as follows: I have set my wedding date for May. My future in-laws are very conservative people and they would be horrified by this. Do I have the right to ask my parents to hold off on the divorce until after my wedding?---DISTRAUGHT

Dear Dis: You certainly do. If your parents stood each other for 30 years they can stand each other for another three months.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, wrote to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self -addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

If You Were The Judge

Couple Married Even If Certificate Strays

Rev. Smyth had a memory like a steel trap that had been sprung. In fact, it was probably only the result of sheer repetition that enabled him to find his way to the pulpit every Sunday morning.

As a consequence, after marring Jethro and Clara he completely forgot to file their marriage certificate as required by law. The omission didn't come to light until years later when Jethro died. Jethro's relatives uncovered the omission and insisted, in court, that Jethro's estate belonged to them and not to Clara who claimed to be his widow.

"Since the minister failed to comply with the law," they pointed out, "Jethro and Clara weren't legally married and Clara isn't Jethro's widow."

"You can't make me suffer because we were married by an absentminded minister," answered Clara. "If our four children aren't sufficient proof that we were married, I don't know what is."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you consider Clara's marriage valid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES. The judge held that when a man and a woman are married by a minister, duly authorized to perform the ceremony, the marriage is valid. The fact that a minister forgets to file the marriage certificate does not affect its validity.

Hitch Delays SST Completion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Technical problems reportedly will keep the nation's proposed supersonic transport plane grounded until at least 1972.

Government sources said Wednesday that recent design changes authorized to improve the performance of the 1,800-mile-an-hour SST have delayed its development by about a year.

Thoe Boeing Co. of Seattle Wash., refused comment on reports about the plane it is developing with the help of federal subsidies. The White House referred questions to the Federal Aviation Administration, which in turn referred them to the White House.

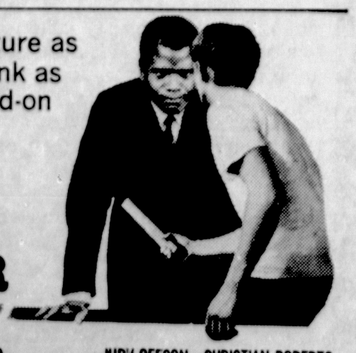

There have been calls on Capitol Hill for cutbacks in spending on the SST project, especially in view of mounting Vietnam war costs and federal budget deficits. Sources said the delay could sharply reduce the $223 million the administration has earmarked for the SST in the next fiscal year.

BOWLER, 12, GETS 300

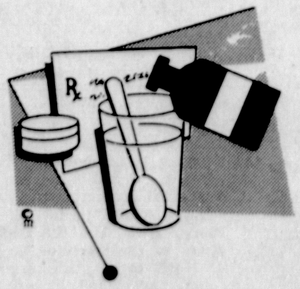

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A claim for youngest 300 bowler was made here in mid-January when Dale Mesenbrink, 12, got 12 straight strikes on the Echo lanes.

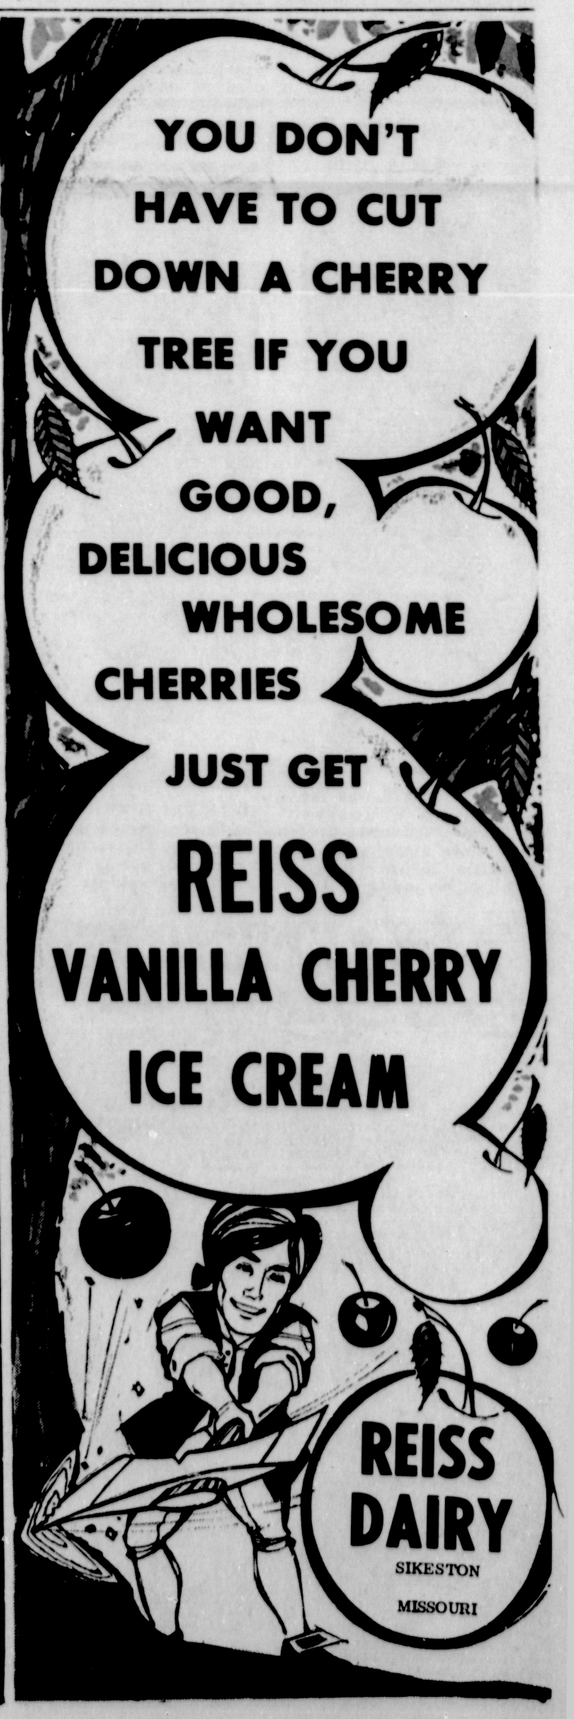

The 5-foot-4 youngster had been averaging 136. However, since Christmas, when his dad gave him a new bowling ball, he has been averaging 170.
